Magura Firm Gets $600,000 Army Contract

Local Clothing Co. to Hire More Workers to Make Jackets

A $600,000 U. S. Army contract to tailor 40,000 winter dress jackets for G. I.'s has been awarded to the Magura Clothing Co., of Monessen, Stephan, John and Michael Magura, the owners, announced today.

The contract was awarded by the Military Clothing and Textile Supply Agency, Quartermaster Supply Depot at Philadelphia.

Although the contract was actually awarded on May 10, it did not become effective until last weekend because "certain conditions" had to be met before the Defense Department would make the award final the Maguras said.

One of the conditions was the posting of a $116,000 performance bond, which the firm arranged through a Philadelphia surety company last Friday.

The order for the jackets is to be completed by March, 1958.

150 To Be Hired

The owners said the order will provide work for 150 additional persons. About 120 are employed at present in the Magura plant on Schoonmaker Ave.

To complete the order on time, the brothers said they will need more machines and space. At present, tailoring machines are operating on the second floor of the 2½-story brick plant at 272 Schoonmaker Ave. Machines on the top floor will go into operation next week.

Besides these two floors, the company will continue using a portion of the basement Polish Club for storage.

The firm is seeking additional plant space through Mon Valley Area Enterprises, Inc., a non-profit group formed four years ago to encourage new industry to locate in the area.

The Magura brothers said the order, which will be completed by the end of March, 1958, will be filled by 3 shifts of workers.

Actual work began yesterday with the cutting of uniforms by a score or more of the 120 persons, who will start shortly, now employed.

Work production is in full swing — either in late July or early August — over 1,000 jackets a week are expected to be turned out.

It is not the first Army clothing contract the local firm has received, but "this one is the biggest," the Maguras stated.

"It is a unique opportunity for us," they said in a joint statement. "We hope it will benefit our employees, the community and our firm."

The local firm opened for business here in 1939 shortly after the three brothers came to America as immigrants from Czechoslovakia while they were on a similar operation. All three live in Monessen.

Two Injured in Bicycle Crash

Two Bentleyville youths were injured last night when the bicycle they were riding went out of control and crashed into a parked car, it was reported today.

Injured were Thomas Twardeck, 14, bruises of the shoulders and elbows, and Donald Thames, 13, lacerations of the scalp and face and body bruises.

The boys were traveling down a steep hill in Bentleyville when the bike's brakes failed.

Study Proposal To Eliminate Tax on Movies

HARRISBURG (UP)—A Senate-House conference committee will try to iron out differences on legislation to eliminate local taxes on motion picture admissions.

The conference committee procedure was assured Monday night when the Senate refused to go along with changes made by the House.

The House approved the bipartisan bill Monday, 134-47, over objections from Pittsburgh lawmakers that removal of the taxing power would cost their city an estimated $500,000 in revenue annually. The House amended the bill to include drive-in theaters and set the effective date back from next Jan. 1 to July 1, 1958.

The legislation was sponsored by Senate President Pro Tempore M. Harvey Taylor (R-Dauphin) and Senate Minority Leader John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland) to aid what they called an "economically sick" industry.

Rep. John H. Devlin (R-Allegheny), an assistant Pittsburgh district attorney, warned removal of the taxing power would mean an increase in real estate taxes or a wage tax. The tax elimination would affect every Pennsylvania community except Philadelphia which is covered under separate legislation.

(The Monessen School District has an annual one per cent tax on amusements. Revenue from this tax during the 1956-57 school year amounted to $31,000.)

The measure would amend the so-called "tax everything" law of 1947 which allows communities to levy up to a 10 per cent tax on movie admissions.

Driver Is Held Pending Inquest Into Girl's Death

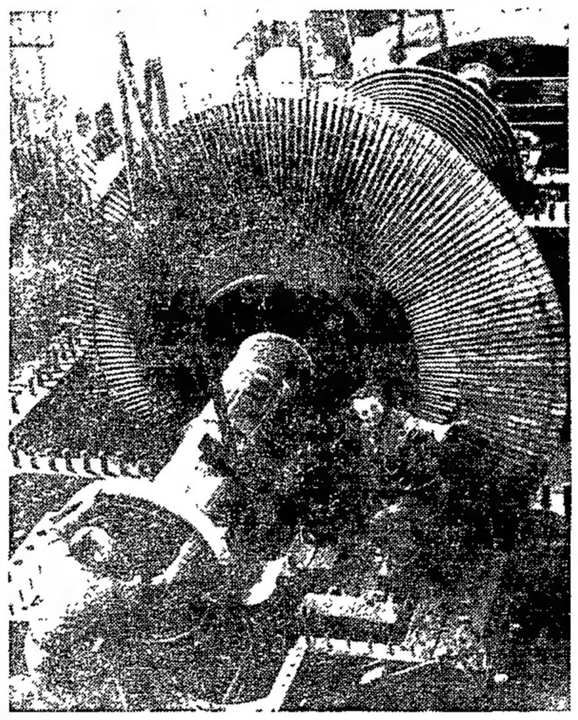
Donald H. Garland, 21, of Donora, is being held under $1,000 bond pending a coroner's inquest into the death of Mrs. Bertha Louise Stoneman, 19, of Donora, who "fell or jumped" from Garland's moving car Saturday night.

Mrs. Corbett, who was estranged resident, died early Sunday evening of a fractured skull in Monongahela Memorial Hospital.

Police reports stated that Mrs. Corbett and Garland were arguing over her smoking cigarettes when she opened the door of the car and either "fell or jumped out," her head striking the pavement.

According to Donora police, the inquest before the Washington County coroner will be "routine."

Mrs. Corbett, who wase strangled from her husband, will be buried tomorrow in Jefferson Memorial Cemetery following 2 p. m. services at St. John Episcopal Church in Donora.



ATOM POWER WILL SPIN IT — This massive chunk of machinery is the spindle for the 100,000-kilowatt turbine which will be installed in the world's first full-scale atomic power plant in Shippingport, Pa. The spindle is shown in Westinghouse's Lester, Pa., plant before shipment. The power plant, being built under AEC contract, will be operated by Duquesne Light company of Pittsburgh. The complete turbine will weigh 1,300,000 pounds, will be 81 feet long, and will be capable of handling 1,400,000 pounds of steam per hour. The steam, which will spin it to produce the power, will be produced by the atomic reactor.

Red Chinese Premier Calls for Soft Line

TOKYO (UP) — Chinese Communist leader Mao Tze-tung, in a complete break with the hard-fisted line of Josef Stalin, has called for a new soft line of "persuasion" to end resistance to the Communist regime in China.

The new Communist ideology, outlined by Mao in a secret speech Feb. 27, was broadcast today by Peiping Radio. The 17,000-word speech said many conflicts still exist in Red China between the masses and the Communist dictatorship.

The speech admitted for the first time that the Hungarian uprising had created widespread unrest in Red China and it raised the possibility that it may have been a major factor in the new reform wave launched by Mao.

His speech rejected a series of far-reaching reforms including encouragement of criticism in books and magazines, the lifting of the ban on certain plays, a purge of low-level Red officials, approval of certain type of strikes, and admissions of errors in Peiping's forced collective and construction plan.

Attack on Russia

In dealing with the Hungarian uprising he made an oblique attack on Russia for its stern handling of the revolt. However he said the wide-scale "antagonism" practiced by Russia in Hungary was necessary because of the widespread domestic and foreign counter-revolutionaries.

"We cannot compel people to give up idealism, any more than we can force them to believe in Marxism," Mao said. "In settling matters of an ideological nature or controversial issues among the people, we can only use democratic methods, methods of discussions, of criticism, of persuasion and education, not coercive, high-handed methods."

Mao denied that the use of democratic methods by a Communist regime was contradictory to the teachings of Karl Marx and V.I. Lenin — that democratic means could be used among the Communists and the old "commandism or coercion" could be used against outsiders.

Eight Fined in Street Brawl Here Last Night

Nine men arrested after a street brawl in Monessen early yesterday morning were given hearings in police court last night before acting mayor David Canova.

Eight of the men, all from the West Newton district, were fined $5 and costs each. Charges were dropped against the ninth man, Michael Spadafore, 19, of 912 Dennis Ave., of Monessen. All had been charged with disorderly conduct.

Paying fines were: Carl Holomcheck, 17; Walter Riddell, 20; Robert Stonecker, 20; Norman Vinsack, 18, and Gene Mihalko, 17, all of Lowber; Martin Coffer, 26, of Wyano; James Aultman, 21, of West Newton, and Jacob Koziepiak, 21, of R. D., West Newton.

The fight broke out following an argument at a picnic Sunday in Lowber, near West Newton. Spadafore and a group of Monessen men were followed home by the West Newton district men and a fight broke out at the corner of North St. and Knox Ave., Monessen.

It was broken up by police almost immediately after it started.

Drug Store and Service Station Are Burglarized

Burglars continued to be active in Monessen during the night, hitting Span's Drug Store at 205 Schoonmaker Ave. and Vic's Service Station at 18 East Donner Ave. police reported.

At Span's, the burglars broke a glass in the front door to gain entrance. Once inside, they ransacked three cash registers and escaped with an estimated $200 in cash.

They entered the service station through an open window and looted a cigarette machine of an undetermined amount of cash.

During the past week, five burglaries have been committed in Monessen, four of them involving service stations.

Suspects are being questioned but no arrests have been made.

The suspects were taken before Justice of the Peace Howard Jones, of Fairhope, where they each posted $500 bond. They were held for court.

Record Heat Continues To Scorch the District

Assembly In 'War Of Nerves'

HARRISBURG (UP)—A Senate-House conference committee will make another attempt today to break the deadlock over the General Appropriation Bill and open the way for final adjournment of the Legislature Wednesday.

Republican lawmakers on the GOP dominated committee were reported to be holding firm to their position that no additional funds should be restored to the budget and the major appropriation bill should be reported back to both chambers at its present $1,111,043,000 level.

Democratic leaders warned outright that in that event the 93 million dollars in non-preferred appropriations for state aided hospitals, universities and other private institutions will go down to defeat, with their refusal to provide the needed two-thirds majority vote.

It is now a "war of nerves", with the Democratic minority hesitating about whether the Republicans will take the chance of calling up the non-preferred appropriations to meet the Wednesday target for final adjournment.

The GOP, in turn, is calculating the effects of the Democratic threat to cause the downfall of the important special grants for higher educational institutions and hospitals.

Sees Adjournment Delay

Sen. Joseph M. Barr (D-Allegheny), who sat in on some of the conference committee sessions Monday predicted on the Senate floor it would be "long past Wednesday when final adjournment comes."

"I think I can speak for this side when I say we will stick on these non-preferred appropriations."

Senate Republicans predicted privately the non-preferred appropriation bills would be called up to test Democratic reaction.

"If they want a special session, this is one way to get it," Sen. Edward B. Watson (R-Bucks) said.

Asked flatly whether the Democratic Senate delegation would maintain a solid front on the institutional appropriations, Senate Minority Leader John H. Dent said:

"There is no doubt about it. They will find we just don't scare easily."

Both House and Senate held their longest sessions of the current meetings Monday—the House 13 and the Senate 14 hours.

The Senate approved and sent to the House for concurrence a revised edition of the school subsidy bill—this one calling for $31,750,000 in additional school aid over the next two years. The amount varies from $450,000 to one million dollars more than was approved by the House, according to whose figures are used.

Cites Cost to Pittsburgh

Barr, one of five Democrats who opposed the bill on final Senate passage in the 42-5 vote, protested it would cost the city of Pittsburgh one million dollars. The bill was revised to give Pittsburgh $17 less per teaching unit than was granted in the House version.

Both chambers recessed for dinner last night and returned at 9 p.m. edt. The Senate then took more than three hours debating legislation which would eliminate machinery as an item of taxation in Allegheny County over a five-year period.

After the Senate finally adopted the measure by a 26-21 vote, the weary lawmakers put over action on all other controversial legislation until today.

All Local Bicycles Must Be Licensed

Monessen police are accepting applications for new licenses for bicycles, Chief of Police Michael Kuvinka said today.

Owners can obtain new licenses at the police station daily from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. at a cost of 50 cents each.

A policeman will be on duty at the Park Plan entrance on Saturday, June 29, to accept applications from owners in that area.

All bicycles must be licensed. Owners of unlicensed bikes are liable to a fine.

County GOP Huddle Will Discuss Judges

A huddle of Westmoreland County Republican leaders and candidates today may throw some light on the GOP choice of the third judicial nominee which the party's county committee is scheduled to choose Saturday.

Today's conference will be held at 4 p. m. in the Mountain View Hotel near Greensburg.

County Chairman Edwin A. Swink said attendance would be limited to members of the executive committee and nominees for county offices.

Swink told the Daily Independent this morning that he had called the meeting at the request of "several of the candidates" but said he didn't know what the purpose was.

"I assume we will discuss plans for the campaign," he said.

But one of the items almost certain to be discussed will be the county committee's choice of a third judicial candidate.

This nomination is scheduled to be made at a special meeting of the committee in the Greensburg High School at 2 p. m. Saturday.

The vacancy was created by the death of Judge George H. McWherter just before last month's primaries. It occurred too late for candidates to be nominated by the voters along with the candidates for two other court positions. So the nominations for the third post must be made by the county committees of the two parties.

The third Republican candidate will be a running mate for Robert H. Real and Avra N. Pershing Jr., who were nominated at the May 21 primary.

The Democrats plan to pick their third candidates some time after the GOP choice is made.

Most of Nation Is Suffering

The record-breaking heat wave and humid weather was expected to continue throughout the Monessen district this afternoon and tonight with scattered thundershowers offering some relief from the current intense heat wave now in its seventh day.

The highest temperature reached yesterday was 96 degrees at 5 p. m. The low was 72 degrees at 4:20 this morning, according to the Donora Zinc Works weather station.

At noon today the temperature zoomed to 93 but fell off two degrees 20 minutes later. It began climbing again at 12:45 p. m., when a reading of 92 was given.

Continued humid weather was expected in Monessen tonight with temperatures dropping to the mid-70's.

Scattered Storms

The record heat wave also was smothering most of the nation for the third day today, broken only by scattered storms that touched off damaging flash floods in the [illegible] and Ohio River Valley.

The death rate, mostly from drownings, soared with the temperatures across the eastern half of the nation.

The intense heat also caused power shortages in New York and Chicago, buckled streets and highways and disrupted work in offices and plants.

The United Press counted at least 155 persons dead in disasters blamed on the heat and a succession of floods since the weekend.

At least 101 of the victims drowned, 34 of them in nine southern states, 21 in New England, 10 in Ohio, 8 each in Wisconsin and Illinois, 6 each in New York, Indiana and Michigan and 2 in New Jersey.

Flood waters killed 26 persons, including 19 in the disastrous floods that hit the St. Louis area during the weekend. Flash floods killed three others in South Dakota and one each in Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota.

Lightning killed three boys sitting under a tree at a boys' camp near New Albany, Ind., and three golfers at a Scranton, Pa. golf course. Heat prostration claimed the life of a golfer in Albany, N.Y., and a tennis player in nearby Green Island, N.Y.

Among record high temperatures Monday were New York's 93 degrees, Cleveland's 92-4, and Buffalo, N.Y., with 91. Chicago tied its record high for the date with a top of 96.

Stolen Car Is Found Wrecked Against Tree

One of two cars stolen on Monessen streets yesterday was found rammed against a tree in Washington Twp., Chief of Police Michael Kuvinka reported today.

The wrecked car owned by Ercole Lattanzio, of 1221 Summit Ave., Monessen, was stolen while the owner was at work on the 4 to 12 p. m. shift at the Monessen plant of Pittsburgh Steel Co.

Washington Twp. authorities found the car about 2:30 a. m. today against a tree. They said three youths seen in the car fled immediately after the car hit the tree.

No trace of injury could be found in the car, police stated.

Joseph Lynch, of 812 Ridge Ave., Monessen, told police someone took his car sometime between 8 a. m. and 2 p. m. while it was parked near 17th St. and Schoonmaker Ave.

Supreme Court Hands Setbacks To Anti-subversive Campaigns

WASHINGTON (UP) — The government's drive against Communists and fellow travelers faltered today against more sweeping new restrictions laid down by the Supreme Court.

Alarm was expressed in some quarters of Congress that the court had gone too far. Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee accused the justices of "undermining our existing barriers against Communist subversion."

The court Monday handed both the government and Congress these sharp setbacks in their anti-subversive campaigns:

—It freed five of 14 California Communists convicted of conspiracy to advocate violent overthrow of the government and ordered new trials for the other nine. In doing so, it held that the Smith Act, the government's main weapon in prosecuting Communists, does not prohibit "teaching of forcible overthrow as an abstract principle, divorced from any effort to instigate action to that end."

—It dismissed the contempt of Congress conviction of Illinois labor leader John T. Watkins who refused to name persons he had known to be in the Communist movement. In doing so it held that henceforth witnesses before congressional committees are within their rights in refusing to answer questions unless the committees establish the pertinency of the questions.

—It set aside the loyalty firing of veteran diplomat John Stewart Service. The court did not rule on the loyalty question but based its decision on what it called procedural flaws by then Secretary of State Dean Acheson in firing Service.

These decisions, plus an earlier one that the government must provide defendants in criminal cases with certain material from hitherto secret FBI files, hit hardest at the drive against Communists.

Others handed down earlier this term also slowed it down.

Monday's decisions brought renewed attacks on the court from some congressmen. Eastland, joined in his statement by Sen. William E. Jenner, ranking Republican member of the Internal Security Subcommittee, said:

"Unless the Congress and the people call a halt to the boundless assumption of power which the Supreme Court has now undertaken, our liberties will be very

Strone Case May Go To Jury Tomorrow

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Attorneys for the prosecution and the defense will make their closing summations today in the extortion trial of Nicholas Stirone, head of the Pittsburgh district Laborers Union Council.

U.S. District Judge John L. Miller will turn the case over to the jury of three men and nine women Wednesday after delivering his charge.

Testimony in the two-week trial ended Monday night with Stirone returning to the witness stand to brand a "pipe dream" the testimony of a Dearborn, Mich., contractor that the union official extorted $35,000 from him.

George T. Doherty, the contractor, said he was forced to turn over to Stirone proceeds from the sale of scrap metal salvaged from a building demolition job.

Doherty said he sent the scrap to the Buncher Co. and did not bill the scrap firm since the money was to go to Stirone, president of the Common Laborers Union. Al and Jack Buncher, owners of the scrap firm, denied Doherty's accusations.

Stirone actually on trial specifically for allegedly extorting some $31,000 from William G. Rider who supplied ready-mixed concrete for work at the Allenport plant of Pittsburgh Steel Co.

Stirone maintains the money he received from Rider was a commission for obtaining the contract for the concrete.

Doherty was called by the government as a rebuttal witness because he allegedly suffered the same extortion as Rider.

The Buncher brothers maintained they "never paid Nick Stirone a nickel" and the defense introduced as evidence checks totaling $3,800 issued to Doherty as payment for non-ferrous as well as ferrous metals Doherty sold them.

However, the government pointed out Doherty never claimed he did not receive any money from the Bunchers for non-ferrous metals but that he received only a fraction of their value.

U. S. Pays For Union Dinner

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Rackets Committee said today "Uncle Sam was bearing a large part of the cost" of an $85,000 testimonial dinner for Vice President Max Kralstein of the Bakery Workers Union.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said Kralstein got $61,000 cash out of the dinner in his honor, listed the money as a gift, and paid no tax on it.

The donors, McClellan said, charged off their contributions as tax-deductible business expenses.

McClellan, reopening public hearings on the pretzel-like intricacies of the Bakery Workers' Union, charged that another official, John D. Nelson of Los Angeles, paid no income tax in 1952 and 1953. Nelson, McClellan said, filed returns for 1954 and 1956 only after he was subpenaed.

Resume Hearings

The chairman called both cases to the attention of the Internal Revenue Service "with the hope it will recoup the considerable revenue the government today is losing by these practices."

McClellan made his charges before resuming the hearings with other witnesses.

Gilbert Mann, former head of the Chicago Local 100, headed the list. He was forced out of his post when the local was placed under trusteeship of a union vice president who since has resigned.

Committee sources said today's hearing would delve into reports of collusion between the union and management.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said one of today's witnesses would not be identified in advance. But others scheduled for testimony included Joseph Kane, president of Local 525 in New York; Curtis R. Sims, who was suspended as secretary-treasurer of the international after making misconduct charges against union President James G. Cross; and Cross himself.

The committee said Mann was forced out as president of Local 100 in Chicago in January, 1955, when the local was placed under the trusteeship of George L. Stuart, vice president of the international union.

Earlier witnesses testified that Locals 100 and 300 in Chicago, now merged into Local 1, bought Cadillacs, a Buick and a Chevrolet Corvette for Stuart.

'Pike Engineer Says He Was Told to Approve Contracts

HARRISBURG (UP) — A Pennsylvania Turnpike engineer has testified at the turnpike conspiracy trial he was ordered by his superiors to approve disputed payments to the Manu-Mine Research and Development Corp., Reading.

Carroll J. Guldin, district engineer for the Northeastern Extension, said Monday the firm's bills for payment claimed more drilling was done than indicated by measurements made by his staff but he approved payment of the bills on orders from Paul J. McNeill, suspended turnpike finance director, and one of the five top turnpike commission officers on trial in Dauphin County Court for conspiracy in an alleged multi-million dollar swindle involving Manu-Mine contracts.

Guldin said he made two trips from his office in Dupont to commission headquarters in Harrisburg to check on the difference between the drilling footage claimed and the amount measured by the turnpike staff.

He said he first saw the immediate supervisor, assistant chief engineer John D. Paul, one of the defendants, who referred him to McNeill.

Guldin's approval of the bill was required for payment. He said he finally signed his approval in McNeill's office "because he (McNeill) felt that was the thing to do."

However, previous testimony by commission controller Francis V. Sammons revealed that Guldin continued to submit his own reports on Manu-Mine's work, while he approved the firm's bills for more footage than indicated by his measurements.

The state charges Manu-Mine president Charles W. Stuckert Jr. and vice president Clayton A. Landsidle obtained the contract for the drilling of an unlimited number of holes on the Northeastern Extension by false pretenses and received a total of 100 per cent or the agreed seven million dollars before the work.

Former commission chairman Thomas J. Evans, Coudersport, and six former commissioners James F. Torrance, Everett, are charged with conspiracy for their part in the negotiation of the contract.

Also charged with conspiracy are Theodore S. Paul, former commission land counsel, and E. J. Hosier and G. J. Donofry, engineers for the J. E. Greiner Co. Baltimore, hired consultants by the commission.

Frank Costello Associate Killed Leaving Store

NEW YORK (UP)—Frank Scalise, 53, reputed associate of Frank Costello and other underworld figures, was shot to death Monday as he was leaving a fruit and vegetable store in a teeming Bronx neighborhood.

The two gunmen, who fired at least five shots, fled in a waiting sedan double-parked in front of the store.

The proprietor of the store, Enrico Mazzaro, from whom Scalise had just purchased 90 cents worth of produce, was held in $100,000 bail as a material witness. Mazzaro said the shooting took place so fast that he was unable to get a good look at the killers.

Assistant Bronx District Attorney Albert Blinder said the shooting had "all the earmarks" of a gangland slaying. He expressed the belief that the murder was linked with the international narcotics traffic. Federal authorities have suspected Scalise of having been involved in an international dope smuggling ring and of being a leader in an offshoot of the notorious Mafia.

Scalise was a former associate of one-time vice lord Charles (Lucky) Luciano.

Radar Testing For Speeding Is Beaten Down

HARRISBURG (UP) — Sen. George N. Wade (R-Cumberland) announced to the Senate Monday that legalizing radar as a speeder detection device was dead for the session but the Republican Senate majority was forced to beat down a determined Democratic attempt to revive it.

Wade, chairman of the Senate Highways Committee, said the bill will not be reported from committee this session because it was "too controversial and left too many questions unanswered." The measure was part of the administration's proposed increased highway safety program.

The Senate Democratic leadership immediately submitted a proposed amendment to a minor highway bill to include radar as a speeding detection device. The move was defeated 27-18 by a solid Republican majority.

Wade requested that the radar question be made a subject of study by the Joint State Government Commission and the Senate voted unanimously to adopt the resolution.

Dulles Urges Speed In Court Decision Over Girard Appeal

WASHINGTON (UP)—The federal judge deciding whether GI William S. Girard should be brought home immediately from Japan considered the case today under the spur of a plea for speed from Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Federal Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy was expected to hand down a decision sometime this week.

Dulles said in a disposition before the court released Monday that a speedy decision was needed to avoid "great embarrassment" to the United States.

He said "every hour" in which the issue of whether Japan or a U.S. military court martial should try Girard for killing a Japanese woman was not settled was a source of international friction. He also said there is a possible "risk of injury to United States personnel located in Japan."

Administration officials said Dulles wanted a quick decision so the case can reach the Supreme Court before it recesses for the summer. Next Monday will be the last meeting of the current term unless the justices otherwise order.

Girard's attorneys in New York attacked Dulles. They said he took an unprecedented "brazen" step and accused him of trying to have his political actions "rubber stamped" by the courts.

Girard is accused of killing a Japanese woman while guarding a military firing range near Tokyo. The case has created an international furor.

In Japan, two witnesses to the incident said today Girard had ordered Japanese scrap pickers off the firing range before he fired the shot alleged to have killed Mrs. Naka Sakai.

It also was reported by the witnesses that Girard was walking or running toward Mrs. Sakai when he fired the shot which killed her with his rifle near his hip.

The witnesses said he could not have aimed accurately while moving over the rough terrain.

Judge

The exact date for the meeting has not been set, but it is expected to be after County Chairman Jay W. Kromer returns from vacation early in July.

The two regular Democratic nominees are Judge Edward G. Bauer and District Attorney L. Alexander Sculco. Judge Bauer is seeking reelection to a second term.

As late as yesterday afternoon Republican leaders had not agreed on a candidate for the McWherter vacancy.

There was still some discussion of the possibility of putting a defeated Democrat, Joseph M. Loughran, on the GOP ticket. Loughran ran a strong independent campaign in the primary against the Democratic courthouse organization but came in third on both tickets.

Support for Loughran as a Republican nominee is coming chiefly from his Democratic supporters, and no Republican leader is openly advocating the move.

But the Republicans have no candidate of their own who commends anything like broad support. The name most often mentioned in recent days is that of Willis E. Topper, Greensburg attorney and former GOP county chairman.

Attorney Daniel J. Snyder Jr., son of a former orphans court judge, has been mentioned frequently, and he could probably have the nomination if he would take it. He is treasurer of the Republican County Committee and has a wide friendship which cuts across the factional lines of GOP politics.

But while he has not publicly removed himself, friends say it would take considerable persuasion to get Snyder to be the candidate.

Rial and Pershing have both been non-committal about the choice of a running mate. But both said they would attend today's conference.

Some dissatisfaction is being heard among Republican county candidates with Swink's leadership. The chairman is generally well liked personally, but some candidates feel that he is not sufficiently aggressive.

This may come into the open at the huddle today, and one well informed Republican told The Independent that it might be proposed that a campaign chairman be appointed to direct the forthcoming battle. This is done frequently by both parties and does not necessarily reflect lack of confidence in the elected party chairman.

All members of the Republican County Committee are eligible to vote at Saturday's meeting. They may also be represented by proxy, but party rules require that the proxy reside in the same precinct as the committee member he represents.

Each of the 287 precincts in the county has one man and one woman on the committee. As many as 400 are expected to attend either in person or by proxy.

West Brownsville Denies Contempt Of Court Order

The borough of West Brownsville yesterday denied it was in contempt of a court order specifying the reinstatement of Mel Deskins as a West Brownsville police officer.

The denial came in an answer filed with the Washington County court by Borough Solicitor Sustin Murphy on behalf of the borough council to reply to a petition filed by counsel for Deskins for a rule to show cause why council should not be held in contempt.

The answer claimed that Deskins was returned to duty not once but twice in compliance not only of a county court order but a State Supreme Court order and that Deskins was given back pay.

The answer went on to say that council acted in good faith at its meeting of June 4 when it abolished the police department of the borough for financial reasons.

It is expected that the court will set an early date for hearing on the petition and answer.

Shocking Exhibition

NOTTINGHAM, England (UP)—The mayor of Nottingham touched off what may have been the world's most spirited "milk shake" at a local dairy festival Monday. The mayor pushed a button which started automatic milking machines and also set a herd of cows lowing, bellowing, jumping and mooing. An official said the jerseys bounced because a short circuit in the wiring of the milk machines gave each bovine a jolting series of electric shocks.

Author Is Missing

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Novelist Elliott Paul, 66, author of the best selling "The Last Time I Saw Paris," was reported missing today.

...arch suspended at the years end.

Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.) of the House Committee on Un-American Activities said the court had "leaned over backward to impede the work of his group with its decision granting congressional witnesses wider latitude for refusing to answer questions."

Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) said "the whole trend of recent Supreme Court decisions" has been toward "weakening the internal security of this country."

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said that what this country needs now is "not a Supreme Court of lawyers with a reasonable amount of common sense."

Vatican Hopeful Of Polish Peace

VATICAN CITY (UP)—Vatican sources expressed cautious hopes today for a continuing improvement in church-state relations in Poland following the five-week visit of Polish Primate Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski.

The authoritative sources expressed the hope in a careful summing-up of Wyszynski's visit to the Holy See. The primate and his aides left by train Monday to return to Warsaw.

DUNKIRK, N.Y. (UP) — The body of Naval Reserve flyer Lt. Robert Kampmiller was recovered from Lake Erie Friday by two skindivers.

Senate Wants Death For Heroin Peddlers

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Senate has acted to add the sale of heroin to minors to the short list of crimes for which the death penalty may be invoked in Pennsylvania.

The Senate voted 35-13 to send the bill to Gov. George M. Leader despite opposition of some Democratic senators who contended the move was a "backward step" and the prediction of one lawmaker that the governor would veto measure.

Persons convicted or pleading guilty to selling the drug to minors would face either a 10-year-to-life term or the death sentence. The jury would decide which of the penalties would be invoked in a trial case while the court would make the decision if the defendant pleaded guilty.

Sen. William V. Mullin (D-Philadelphia) said he had "no doubt" the governor would veto the bill.

"The taking of life is a leftover from our savage ancestors," Mullin said. "Today it is the refuge of gangsters and dictators."

But Sen. Albert R. Pechan (R-Armstrong) countered the bill was necessary to bring Pennsylvania into line with the federal statutes.

Meanwhile, the Senate took up House revised legislation spelling out mandatory penalties for narcotics violators. The hard hitting bill was passed by the House Monday, 189-5.

It specifies a maximum $2,000 fine and a five-year jail term for first offenders convicted of possession. Second offenders would be liable to fines up to $5,000 and minors would face either a 10-year jail terms ranging from five to 10 years. The jury would decide the so-called "three time loser" would receive a $7,500 fine and imprisonment of not less than 10 years and not more than 30. The bill also would not allow any suspension of sentence, probation or parole except for first offenders. Narcotics peddlers would be liable to $5,000 fines and five years in jail for first offenders ranging upward to life imprisonment and $15,000 fines for third offenders.

Leechburg Slaying Trial Opens in Kittanning

Escaped Convict Accused; Photo Test Is Planned

KITTANNING, Pa. (UP)—Robert T. Davis, 29, Pittsburgh, an escaped convict from West Virginia State Prison, went on trial here today for the bludgeon-slaying of Mrs. Emily S. Foster, 30, outside her Leechburg home last Jan. 30.

Davis, who was captured last March 9, when he forced his way into the car of Mrs. David Hershman, wife of the McKees Rocks burgess, also has 11 charges of attacking women and robbery against him.

Should he escape the death penalty on the murder charge, he could receive sentences totaling several hundred years if found guilty of all the other charges and given maximum penalties.

The murder trial opened with an unique arrangement for one or two photographers who will be allowed to take pictures during the proceedings. Judge J. Frank Graff granted the permission Monday. It was the first time in the history of Armstrong County courts that a judge has given permission for courtroom trial pictures.

Photographic Test

The pictures will be taken by photographers representing newspapers and press associations on 35 mm and 120 film type cameras without flash bulb equipment.

After his arrest, state police said Davis had made a full confession to the murder of Mrs. Foster. They said he told them he followed the victim home from a bingo game and waylaid her at her garage.

Police said Davis told them he struck Mrs. Foster with a lug wrench before robbing her.

Mrs. Foster managed to reach the front door of her home where she died in her husband's arms.

Officers said Davis also admitted he escaped from a road gang in West Virginia in 1955 while serving a 1-to-10 year term for grand larceny. Prior to that time he had been paroled from Western State Penitentiary in Pittsburgh after serving four years for kidnaping a woman motorist.

'Watchdog' Bill Over Spending On Leader's Desk

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today received Republican legislation to set up legislative "watchdogs" over state government spending.

Three Senate bills, sponsored by Sens. Rowland B. Mahany (R-Crawford) and James S. Berger (R-Potter), cleared the House Monday night over solid Democratic opposition.

One bill would require state departments, agencies, boards and commissions to submit budgets 30 days prior to each quarter year during the fiscal period. The budgets would be subject to the approval of the executive committee of the Joint State Government Commission and the House and Senate Appropriations Committee chairmen. Violators would be guilty of a misdemeanor in office and liable to impeachment.

A two measure package would prevent the Public Assistance Department from increasing benefits, adding new assistance classes or "otherwise" increasing the cost of assistance without approval of the Legislature during session of the JSGC executive committee.

Miller to Ask For Reversal Of Conviction

WASHINGTON (UP) — Playwright Arthur Miller will ask that his conviction for contempt of Congress be reversed in the light of a new Supreme Court ruling in a similar case.

The high court Monday threw out the contempt conviction of Illinois labor leader John T. Watkins. Watkins, like Miller, freely admitted to congressional investigators his own past links to Communism but refused to name others he knew to be involved in the Communist movement.

Sources close to Miller, husband of actress Marilyn Monroe, said the playwright's attorney would cite the Watkins decision in asking District Judge Charles F. McLaughlin to reverse Miller's conviction. Miller now is free on $1,000 bond awaiting sentence.

In the Watkins case, the Supreme Court held that witnesses are within their rights in refusing to answer the questions of a congressional committee unless the committee:

—Spells out the purpose of its investigation.

—The witness' connection with that investigation.

—The reasons why specific questions put to the witness are pertinent.

The Supreme Court in a 6-to-1 decision written by Chief Justice Earl Warren, said the committee failed to adequately explain why the questions it asked Watkins were pertinent.

Would Increase Taxing Powers Of Communities

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today considered legislation to increase the taxing powers of most Pennsylvania communities.

The House passed Monday, 125-54 Senate legislation to provide that Pittsburgh, Scranton, third class cities, first class boroughs and townships, Bloomsburg and second class townships be permitted higher tax ceilings. The communities could levy an aggregate amount of all taxes during any fiscal year equal to the product obtained by multiplying the latest total assessed valuation of real estate by 15 mills instead of 10.

The bill also provides that in second, third and fourth class school districts the aggregate of all taxes during the fiscal year could not exceed an amount equal to the product obtained by multiplying the latest total market valuation of real estate by 12 mills.

Fourth Nuclear Test Blast

ATOP ANGELS' PEAK, Nev. (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission detonated the fourth atomic blast of the spring-summer test series today—a pre-dawn explosion designed in part to study the effects of the blinding atomic flash on the eyes.

The secret test device was fired at 4:45 a.m. p.d.t. from a platform suspended beneath a captive balloon floating 500 feet above the Nevada desert at Yucca Flat, approximately 75 miles from Las Vegas.

With the aid of a clear western night, it was the brightest flash yet in the test series and was clearly seen in San Francisco, approximately 350 airlines miles distant.

AEC observers said the huge fireball did not touch the ground. The device was calculated to yield the force equivalent to approximately 10,000 tons of TNT, about half the power of the bombs that smote Hiroshima and Nagasaki toward the end of World War II.

Observers in Los Angeles, also roughly 350 airline miles away, saw a yellow flash like a giant photographer's bulb are across one-fourth of the northeast horizon.

Test animals subjected to the blast included monkeys, pigs and rabbits. All were anesthetized. A pre-blast announcement by the AEC said the rabbits were used to study the effects of the flash on the eyes. Scientists and the military have long been aware that the blinding light of nuclear fission is a primary weapon that could leave the major part of the population of a target city helplessly blind, temporarily and permanently, in a surprise attack under the right conditions.

20 Area Reservists on Active Duty

Twenty district young men were among the 336 Pennsylvania Army Reservists who left Indiantown Gap Military Reservation last evening bound for Fort Knox, Ky., and six months of active duty training.

The Reservists, members of the 79th Army Reserve Division's "Cross of Lorraine Training Packet" are from cities throughout the entire state.

Farewell addresses were given by Maj. Gen. Albert H. Stackpole, commander of the 79th and Brig. Gen. A. W. Stuart, chief, U. S. Army Military District, Pennsylvania.

The Reservists will return to their home towns in early December where they will attend weekly training sessions at their home town training centers.

Mamie Enters Walter Reed

WASHINGTON (UP)—Mrs. Eisenhower today was undergoing a "routine physical checkup" at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Mrs. Eisenhower will undergo a "top-to-toe" examination. He emphasized that the hospital visit was not prompted by any kind of illness.

Mrs. Eisenhower entered the hospital Monday. She was expected to remain several days.

The First Lady underwent her last check-up only four months ago. She has a heart murmur as a result of a childhood attack of rheumatic fever. But Hagerty said the hospital visit had "no relation at all" to that.

Non-filter Tip Cigarettes Raise

NEW YORK (UP)—Americans will pay a cent a pack more for non-filter tip cigarettes.

Five major tobacco companies raised wholesale prices 35 cents a thousand Monday, which works out to around one cent a pack at retail. The increases probably will be passed along to consumers.

The price hikes were blamed on rising costs of tobacco, labor and advertising.

The Full Circle

THE VISIT to the United States of Prime Minister Nobosuke Kishi of Japan brings the relations between the two nations full circle.

Mr. Kishi is arriving as the leader of a nation which was once our bitterest enemy but which has now become a close and — we believe — dependable partner in the vital business of preserving peace and freedom in the Far East.

The pathway around this circle has been a rocky one indeed. It is doubtful if the American people ever hated the people of an enemy nation as they hated the Japanese. Perhaps because of the racial difference or maybe because of the dastardly nature of the Pearl Harbor attack, the virulence of the average American's hate of the average Japanese exceeded anything that was felt, for example, towards the German.

There was no shred of chivalry about the fighting in the Pacific in World War II. A "Jap" was a thing which had to be exterminated, not a man who happened to be on the opposite side of an international disagreement. And whether it was in the air, on the sea or in the caves of the islands, the fight went to the bitter end.

It is not easy to recall such emotions, and we shouldn't if we could. Better for ourselves we should never hate any people like that again.

Yet it is almost necessary to "remember Pearl Harbor" to grasp the full extent of the change that has come over the world as signified by Premier Kishi's visit. As he and our President tee off together today at Burning Tree, we can realize how utterly tantastic such a prospect would have seemed a short 15 years ago. And we can say about present world problems, as really wise men have been saying about their troubles for centuries. "This, too, shall pass away."

Up to the Governor

THE PENNSYLVANIA Assembly last week adopted two bills which have been discussed in this space on several occasions during the current session. These are the "open meetings" and "open records" bills.

The measures are now on the desk of Gov. George M. Leader, whose approval is necessary if they are to become law.

We earnestly hope Governor Leader will sign them, and we have no reason to fear that he will not.

But it will do no harm to the cause of good government — and it may help the Governor — if interested citizens will let him know of their interest in this important legislation.

Briefly, these two bills (Senate 224 and House 800) are designed to require government agencies to transact public business in public meetings and to make public records available for public inspection.

It may seem strange, at this advanced hour in the development of democratic government in this country, that new laws are required to accomplish so elementary a requirement. Freedom of information is as essential to democracy as oxygen to the human body.

But the fact is certain agencies of government in Pennsylvania have been able to operate in relative secrecy. And still others have tried to do so.

These two bills will close most of the loopholes which are apparent at the present time. And if Governor Leader will sign them, he will complete what in our judgment is a fine legislative achievement.

Another Season

THE MONESSEN-Belle Vernon Civic Music Association has completed its reorganization in preparation for its sixth annual series of concerts next winter. It will be headed by Mrs. Paul Latkanich, of Monessen, who has been a staunch worker in the movement from the beginning, serving as campaign chairman last year when Civic Music membership reached an all-time high.

The campaign will be held sometime in the early fall, and there will be ample time to inform present members and prospective new ones about the Civic Music plan.

It is enough to say now that here is something this neighborhood does not want to be without. Year after year Civic Music is providing the whole Valley area with regular opportunities to hear some of the outstanding musical artists of the world.

This does not happen without considerable effort, of course. Many communities larger than this one do not have concert series. And we here those who make this one possible continue to have the appreciation and support of the public.

Merry-Go-Round—

U. S. Treasury In a 'Mess', Says Pearson

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — By an ironic twist which the general public doesn't realize, George Humphrey is stepping out as Secretary of the Treasury just as the Treasury is in one of the worst messes in recent history.

Mr. Pearson

To quote the Wall Street Journal: "The Government of the United States is in a fiscal mess. The Treasury of the richest nation on earth is short of money. At one point this spring it had hardly enough cash to pay a week's worth of bills."

Yet Mr. Humphrey has been hailed as the strong man of the cabinet and one of the grestest secretaries of the Treasury in history.

The fact is, however, that Victory Bonds have been selling at $86, the same panic levels at which millions of people sold and took their losses on Liberty Bonds after World War I. In addition, the Treasury's interest rate for long-term bonds is at the highest point in history, despite which the bonds can't be sold to the public. The recent $4,200,000,000 bond offering at 3⅝ per cent for 57 months was a complete bust. The investing public just wouldn't buy.

On top of this the Treasury has to raise $55 billion to cover maturing bonds in the next 12 months. Yet it has now given up all hope of raising money through long-term bonds and gone back to short-term notes.

Bankers in Control

One of the big campaign issues of the Eisenhower administration was to get away from short-term, hand-to-mouth financing. To accomplish this, one of the leading businessmen of the nation, George Humphrey, was made Secretary of the Treasury, while the actual job of revising fiscal policy was put under Randolph Burgess of the National City Bank, a strong critic of the government's past bond policy under Henry Morgenthau. Burgess is married to a great-great-great-granddaughter of Alexander Hamilton, first Secretary of the Treasury and the father of American fiscal policy.

One of the first things Burgess did was announce that he would take $170 billion of the government's debt and put it away in long-term bonds for 20 or 30 years.

To please the bankers, he also jacked up interest rates. This was his worst mistake. After he had hiked interest rates on one bond issue, he couldn't go back to lower rates on other issues. The bankers and the investors wouldn't take it.

So the cost of handling the national debt today, because of increased interest charges, is about the same as the cost of the entire government budget during the peak days of WPA and PWA, when many business leaders were denouncing the high cost of government.

Meanwhile, the government has enough money to last through June. But $4 billion will be needed in July. In August, the Treasury faces another $15½ billion in maturities, with another $8 billion in October. Though part of these are held by the Federal Reserve, at least $9 to $10 billion are in public hands.

These public investors are finding that they can get a better return from the stock market or in municipal bonds. They don't like having their money tied up in long-term government bonds when runaway inflation is daily depleting the value of the dollar.

You can write it down, therefore, that as long as inflation continues, the Treasury will face an almost impossible problem of floating its loans. No wonder George Humphrey is anxious to exit as Secretary of the Treasury.

Navy Slaps Back

You can't prove it, but it looks as if the Navy had decided to retaliate against congressional economizers. It has ordered an abrupt close-down of the Elizabeth City, N. C., Naval facility.

This Naval station is in the district of North Carolina's Herbert Bonner, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and a leading budget-cutter. His votes have been considered anti-Navy.

You can't get anyone at the Navy Department to admit this, but it seems highly unusual that the Elizabeth City Naval base should be closed, for two reasons:

1. It is a blimp base used to patrol the Atlantic coast for submarines; and more Russian subs have been lurking off the coast than ever, watching guided missile operations.

2. Elizabeth City happens to have the only two hangars that can accommodate the new blimps ordered by the Navy. When they are delivered, they'll have no place to go except Elizabeth City — unless new hangars are built, which would certainly be no economy.

If you ask anyone at the Navy about this, all you get are smiles. However, it certainly looks as if Congressman Bonner is getting stepped and stepped hard.

From Washington—

The Mao-Khrushchev 'Debate'

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

There is one good way to determine the single most tell-tale passage in Nikita Khrushchev's hour-long television interview.

Was there anything in Mr. Khrushchev's unrehearsed answers which the Soviet people were not allowed to read?

Mr. Drummond

There was. One question and answer did not appear in Pravda. When the interview was being readied to appear in the newspapers of Red China, the Chinese censor focused his eye on the same passage and he, too, struck it out.

The censored passage reaches to the heart of Communist principles. It marks a widening disagreement between Chinese Communist thinking and Soviet Communist thinking. It is giving the Chinese Communists large and, to Moscow, disturbing, influence among the satellite Communist regimes which are eagerly looking for ways to turn away from Kremlin leadership.

What Khrushchev Said

Because, obviously, there is more than meets the eye here — so much more that it has not yet been allowed to meet the eyes of the Russian and Chinese people at all — it is well to look at exactly what Mr. Khrushchev said. Here is the text of the translation:

Mr. Schorr (CBS correspondent): "Mr. Khrushchev, a recent statement from Peking said that in a socialist state there can exist contradictions between the masses and the leaders. I wonder if, in republishing that in Pravda, . . . the Soviet Communists accept this idea, and what are the implications of it for the Soviet Union?"

Mr. Khrushchev: "Each socialist or capitalist country has its own course of development and its own stages of development . . . each people have their own habits, customs, its own history and the Communist party of the country concerned should take that into account. Our Chinese friends have many original ideas, which they are implementing in the course of socialist construction in their own country. They are giving birth to new ideas, too, which take into consideration the specific conditions in China . . . there is no contradiction with any Marxist-Leninist ideas in this respect."

Mr. Schorr: "But are you saying these contradictions do not exist in the Soviet Union today?"

Mr. Khrushchev: "We believe that we have no contradictions of that nature."

Conflict Cited

There is a direct conflict between the new Communist doctrine enunciated by Mao tse-Tung — "that contradictions exist between the masses and their (Communist) leaders" — and Khrushchev's effort to maintain the pretense that a Communist dictatorship always acts in the interests of its people.

In recent weeks Mao has unfolded his "new doctrine" in two secret speeches, only extracts from which have appeared in the Chinese press. His theme has been that the Communist masses should have the right to talk back to the government, air their grievances, strike if necessary, and that the Communist officials had better pay attention.

Mao appears to be seeking to soften in China the kind of discontent which led to riot and revolt in Eastern Europe. At the same time he is propounding a doctrine which Moscow doesn't like which the anti-Soviet Communists of Poland and elsewhere in Eastern Europe do like, and, to the Kremlin's dismay, he is beginning to establish Chinese Communist influence almost on a par with Soviet influence in the increasingly unsettled satellite world.

Mao Is Quoted

But is Mao really softening the Chinese dictatorship — or only talking about it? Note this paragraph from his partially reported speeches of last February:

"In dealing with enemies it is necessary to use force. We in China also have used force to deal with enemies of the people. The total number of those who were liquidated by our security forces numbers 800,000. This was the figure up to 1954. Since then we are no longer using methods of terror."

Here Mao blandly condones terror against those who disagree with Communism. If the rest of his statement means anything, it means that the Chinese Reds sheathe the use of terror only when they are sure that other methods of "persuasion" will be adequate.

"That's like swearing off strong drink except when you're thirsty.

At the White House—

Ike's Stand on 1960

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UP) — Backstairs at the White House:

Some of President Eisenhower's chief political advisers want him to come out in advance of the 1960 political conventions with his preference for a Republican presidential nominee—in terms that are unmistakable.

They are proceeding cautiously, however, lest they stir up some resistance from Eisenhower, as well as some GOP hopefuls.

These advisers do not envision a "this-or-nothing" approach by the President. Their reasoning is that the convention could remain "open," with Eisenhower indicating his preference without being so direct as to make it appear that he is trying to dictate to the GOP nominating session.

These politicians reason that Eisenhower's personal popularity will remain high as long as he is in office.

The GOP high command is not unanimous on the issue. Those who don't agree with a pre-convention statement are firm believers in what has become almost a truism with numerous professional politicians:

A President, no matter how popular personally, cannot transmit his public appeal to another man with any degree of certainty or success.

Flight in the helicopters to be used by the White House in next month's big civil defense evacuation exercise is surprisingly comfortable.

In test flights staged from behind the White House last week, reporters traveled aboard two Army twin-roter "workhorse" helicopters. The chairs were the type aboard commercial airliners, complete to comfortable headrests and shiny ashtrays.

But for all the spic and span interior decor, nothing stops the threshing sound of the two rotors. After a flight of 40 minutes, the passengers were about half-deaf for 20 or 30 minutes.

The only people in the six-helicopter flight who could identify the federal reformatory at Lorton, Va., from the air were the reporters and photographers.

A group of Virgin Island senators called on Eisenhower the other day after being delayed in their visit for two days because of the President's illness. They presented a bottle of rum produced in their home islands.

The President accepted the gift graciously, but shook his head in regret. He was just recovering from a painful stomach upset.

"I do appreciate it," he told the delegation, "but I shudder to think what it would do to me if I took a drink of it now."

Behind The News—

Visit by Premier of Japan Seen Important

By CHARLES M. McCANN

A new basis for Japanese American relations will be worked out in Washington this week.

Japanese Premier Nobusuke Kishi is to arrive in the capital on Wednesday for three days of talks with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Mr. McCann

His visit comes at a moment when trade with Communist China, the proposed suspension of nuclear weapons tests and the status of American troops in Japan are getting headlines.

But the diminutive, hard-working, keen-witted Japanese leader will discuss with Eisenhower and Dulles the whole range of Japanese-American relations and problems concerning the whole Far East.

May Strengthen Relations

It is pretty certain, though it will not be announced, that the eventual recognition of Communist China by the United States and Japan and the future of the Chinese Nationalist government in Formosa will be important topics for discussion.

There is every reason to believe the conference will strengthen Japanese-American relations.

Kishi is firmly committed to a pro-United States, pro-Western policy.

He is aware, however, that Japan not only is a leading Far Eastern power but is reassuming its place as a world power.

As a Japanese he must avoid giving his political opponents any opportunity for an accusation that he is making Japan an American satellite.

As the leader of his country's 90 million people he must also raise a number of issues when concern Japan and the United States.

Wants to Increase Trade

Kishi wants to increase Japanese trade with Red China. China is potentially Japan's biggest market, but Kishi wants to make the increase in agreement with the United States, not arbitrarily as Britain did.

He does not intend to bring up the case of William S. Girard, the American soldier accused of killing a Japanese woman on an Army firing range in Japan. But he intends to discuss broader issues of the present "status of forces" agreement, for instance the right of the American command to move troops at will anywhere in Japan.

Kishi intends also to ask that Japan be given some voice in the administration of Okinawa, which now is the chief American military base in the Far East. Eventually, he wants Okinawa handed back to Japan.

May Ask Nuclear Ban

Japan's trade with the United States, which some American industrialists want to restrict sharply to protect their own products, will be another point for discussion.

Kishi is certain to urge earnestly that the United States work out an agreement with Soviet Russia and Britain for the banning of nuclear weapons tests. Japan is caught between Russia on one side and the United States and Britain on the other as regards the present testing grounds for more powerful nuclear weapons.

But he may also ask that the United States supply Japan's new army with tactical atomic weapons. He said recently that in this day of scientific development, Japan cannot defend itself with bamboo spears.

There is one good augury for Kishi's visit—he shares Eisenhower's enthusiasm for golf and will play a round with the President on his first day in Washington.

National Affairs—

Girard Case Seen in Light of U. S. Policy

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP) — Peace makes strange bedfellows, too, just as politics does. Perhaps that explains some of the misunderstanding and resentment in the United States about the plight of Specialist 3C William S. Girard.

Mr. Wilson

It is possible, also, that U. S. citizens have not been able to adjust themselves to the rapidly shifting objectives of American foreign policy. Most Americans now alive adjusted themselves a very few years ago to foreign policy objectives which basically were these:

—Kill Germans; destroy their homes and their industry.

—Ditto for the Japanese.

United States foreign policy now is based on two considerations of fact which it would have been almost treasonable to suggest during war time. The facts are these:

—Germany now is the free nations' anchor man in the West against Communism.

—Japan ditto in the East.

Midwest Farm Boy

Such considerations of fact as these have led to some events which scarcely could have been foreseen nor credited if they had been suggested a few short years ago. For example:

Girard, a Midwest farm boy, has been handed over by the U. S. government to be tried by Japanese courts on charges of shooting and killing a Japanese woman on a U.S. target range in Japan. This has caused resentment in the United States.

U.S. officials are aware that failure to turn Girard over for Japanese trial would cause even greater resentment in Japan.

This situation caused Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) to say a few days ago that the United States is proceeding on a course of "mass appeasement" of the Japanese people — and others — in making the status of forces agreements with foreign nations. These agreements provide for the trial of American military personnel by local courts for offenses committed while not in the performance of duty.

The other side of the argument is provided by the Formosa incident in which Chinese rioters sacked the U.S. Embassy. The riot took place after a U.S. military court tried an American soldier on charges of shooting a Chinese peeping tom. The soldier was cleared and released.

Focuses Attention

However that may be, the Girard incident has focused the attention of American citizens on their changed relations with the late enemy.

The change is not only in the East. The Western enemy's role of friend and ally against the Kremlin long since was formalized by admission of West Germany to membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. American officials over the years had been preparing public opinion in the United States for something like that.

President Eisenhower visited Germany in 1951 as the supreme commander of Atlantic defenses. It was a good will visit during which Eisenhower told the Germans "bygones are bygones" so far as World War II enmity was concerned. He said the Germans could become equal partners with the West and that he did not question the "honor" of most Germans against whom he fought.

The partnership has become steadily more secure, so firmly established by now that the nomination on Feb. 7 of this year of German Lt. Gen. Hans Speidel to be commander of NATO ground forces in Central Europe caused hardly a ripple in the United States.

Mrs. Robert C. McCormick
Naomi K. Dunn

Naomi K. Dunn Is Bride Of Robert C. McCormick

In the Stone Methodist Church of Meadville on Saturday afternoon, June 15, at 2:30 o'clock, Naomi K. Dunn and Robert C. McCormick exchanged nuptial vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dunn, of 516 Beers Ave., Meadville and the bridegroom, who is a resident of Tarentum, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. McCormick, of 112 Price Ave., Belle Vernon.

Dr. Bruce L. Middaugh was the officiant and for the occasion the church was decorated with baskets of white gladiolus and pink snapdragons intermingled with ferns and tall lighted tapers held in branched candelabra. Satin ribbon bows marked the family pews.

Dorothy Urick played an organ prelude of nuptial selections and the soloist, William Buchanan, sang "I Love Thee" by Grieg, "Beloved, It Is Morn" by Aylward and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte.

Given by Father

The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a white sheer organza waltz length gown with brief sleeves, sweetheart neckline and bouffant skirt fashioned of unpressed pleats. The gown was accented with appliqued lace clipped Queen Anne lace. Tiers of imported illusion veiling were held to a pearl cloche and she carried an arrangement of white sweet peas centered with pink cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. David S. McAlpine, of Belle Vernon, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Constance Bueckner, of Clairton, Gail Ritel, of Conneaut Lake and Linda Kessel, of Beckley, W. Va., a cousin of the bride.

David S. McAlpine, of Belle Vernon, served as best man for his brother-in-law and the ushers were Thomas Fee, of Belle Vernon, Samuel Fee, of Cumberland, Md. and James Kessel, of Ripley, W. Va., uncle of the bride.

Attired Identically

The matron of honor and the bridesmaids were identically attired in gowns of pearl rose taffeta styled with a high waistline, princess lined skirt and a tucked bodice of chiffon with a narrow streamer and bow. They wore solid rings of matching taffeta on their heads with circular veils and carried cascade bouquets of carnations and white sweet peas. There were white carnations in Mrs. McAlpine's bouquet and pink in those carried by the bridesmaids.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Dunn selected a softly draped colony blue silk chiffon dress with white accessories and a white rose corsage. The mother of the bridegroom selected a dress of beige imported linen with insets of lace and a scoop neckline. She wore rose colored accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Reception Held

Immediately following the ceremony there was a reception in the Frank P. Miller parlor. The bridal table was centered with a five tiered wedding cake topped with sweet peas. The bouquets of the attendants encircled the cake. Reception aides were Mrs. James Kessel, Mrs. Truman Wheeler, Mrs. Charles Boyd and Marilyn DeMarsh.

Guests attended from Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Beckley, W. Va., and Ripley, W. Va., as well as area towns.

When the couple left for a trip to the Pocono Mts. and New York, the bride was wearing a mint green silk print sheath dress with a matching duster, white accessories and a pink cymbidium corsage.

After July 1, Mr. and Mrs. McCormick will live in Natrona Heights.

Penn State Graduates

The new Mrs. McCormick was graduated this month from Pennsylvania State University, where she majored in home economics. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Mr. McCormick is an alumnus of Penn State in 1956 and is employed as a metallurgist for Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp., Tarentum. He is a member of Alpha Chi Sigma fraternity.

The Full Circle

THE VISIT to the United States of Prime Minister Nobosuke Kishi of Japan brings the relations between the two nations full circle.

Mr. Kishi is arriving as the leader of a nation which was once our bitterest enemy but which has now become a close and — we believe — dependable partner in the vital business of preserving peace and freedom in the Far East.

The pathway around this circle has been a rocky one indeed. It is doubtful if the American people ever hated the people of an enemy nation as they hated the Japanese. Perhaps because of the racial difference or maybe because of the dastardly nature of the Pearl Harbor attack, the virulence of the average American's hate of the average Japanese exceeded anything that was felt, for example, towards the German.

There was no shred of chivalry about the fighting in the Pacific in World War II. A "Jap" was a thing which had to be exterminated, not a man who happened to be on the opposite side of an international disagreement. And whether it was in the air, on the sea or in the caves of the islands, the fight went to the bitter end.

It is not easy to recall such emotions, and we shouldn't if we could. Better for ourselves we should never hate any people like that again.

Yet it is almost necessary to "remember Pearl Harbor" to grasp the full extent of the change that has come over the world as signified by Premier Kishi's visit. As he and our President tee off together today at Burning Tree, we can realize how utterly fantastic such a prospect would have seemed a short 15 years ago. And we can say about present world problems, as really wise men have been saying about their troubles for centuries: "This, too, shall pass away."

Up to the Governor

THE PENNSYLVANIA Assembly last week adopted two bills which have been discussed in this space on several occasions during the current session. These are the "open meetings" and "open records" bills.

The measures are now on the desk of Gov. George M. Leader, whose approval is necessary if they are to become law.

We earnestly hope Governor Leader will sign them, and we have no reason to fear that he will not.

But it will do no harm to the cause of good government — and it may help the Governor — if interested citizens will let him know of their interest in this important legislation.

Briefly, these two bills (Senate 224 and House 800) are designed to require government agencies to transact public business in public meetings and to make public records available for public inspection.

It may seem strange, at this advanced hour in the development of democratic government in this country, that new laws are required to accomplish so elementary a requirement. Freedom of information is as essential to democracy as oxygen to the human body.

But the fact is certain agencies of government in Pennsylvania have been able to operate in relative secrecy. And still others have tried to do so.

These two bills will close most of the loopholes which are apparent at the present time. And if Governor Leader will sign them, he will complete what in our judgment is a fine legislative achievement.

Another Season

THE MONESSEN-Belle Vernon Civic Music Association has completed its reorganization in preparation for its sixth annual series of concerts next winter. It will be headed by Mrs. Paul Latkanich, of Monessen, who has been a staunch worker in the movement from the beginning, serving as campaign chairman last year when Civic Music membership reached an all-time high.

The campaign will be held sometime in the early fall, and there will be ample time to inform present members and prospective new ones about the Civic Music plan.

It is enough to say now that here is something this neighborhood does not want to be without. Year after year Civic Music is providing the whole Valley area with regular opportunities to hear some of the outstanding musical artists of the world.

This does not happen without considerable effort, of course. Many communities larger than this one do not have concert series. And we hope those who make this one possible continue to have the appreciation and support of the public.

Merry-Go-Round—

U. S. Treasury In a 'Mess', Says Pearson

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — By an ironic twist which the general public doesn't realize, George Humphrey is stepping out as Secretary of the Treasury just as the Treasury is in one of the worst messes in recent history.

Mr. Pearson

To quote the Wall Street Journal: "The Government of the United States is in a fiscal mess. The Treasury of the richest nation on earth is short of money. At one point this spring it had hardly enough cash to pay a week's worth of bills."

Yet Mr. Humphrey has been hailed as the strong man of the cabinet and one of the grestest secretaries of the Treasury in history.

The fact is, however, that Victory Bonds have been selling at $86, the same panic levels at which millions of people sold and took their losses on Liberty Bonds after World War I. In addition, the Treasury's interest rate for long-term bonds is at the highest point in history, despite which the bonds can't be sold to the public. The recent $4,200,000,000 bond offering at 3⅝s per cent for 57 months was a complete bust. The investing public just wouldn't buy.

On top of this the Treasury has to raise $55 billion to cover maturing bonds in the next 12 months. Yet it has now given up all hope of raising money through long-term bonds and gone back to short-term notes.

Bankers in Control

One of the big campaign issues of the Eisenhower administration was to get away from short-term, hand-to-mouth financing. To accomplish this, one of the leading businessmen of the nation, George Humphrey, was made Secretary of the Treasury, while the actual job of revising fiscal policy was put under Randolph Burgess of the National City Bank, a strong critic of the government's past bond policy under Henry Morgenthau. Burgess is married to a great-great-great-granddaughter of Alexander Hamilton, first Secretary of the Treasury and the father of American fiscal policy.

One of the first things Burgess did was announce that he would take $170 billion of the government's debt and put it away in long-term bonds for 20 or 30 years.

To please the bankers, he also jacked up interest rates. This was his worst mistake. After he had hiked interest rates on one bond issue, he couldn't go back to lower rates on other issues. The bankers and the investors wouldn't take it.

So the cost of handling the national debt today, because of increased interest charges, is about the same as the cost of the entire government budget during the peak days of WPA and PWA, when many business leaders were denouncing the high cost of government.

Meanwhile, the government has enough money to last through June. But $4 billion will be needed in July. In August, the Treasury faces another $15½ billion in maturities, with another $8 billion in October. Though part of these are held by the Federal Reserve, at least $9 to $10 billion are in public hands.

These public investors are finding that they can get a better return from the stock market or in municipal bonds. They don't like having their money tied up in long-term government bonds when runaway inflation is daily depleting the value of the dollar.

You can write it down, therefore, that as long as inflation continues, the Treasury will face an almost impossible problem of floating its loans. No wonder George Humphrey is anxious to exit as Secretary of the Treasury.

Navy Slaps Back

You can't prove it, but it looks as if the Navy had decided to retaliate against congressional economizers. It has ordered an abrupt close-down of the Elizabeth City, N. C., Naval facility.

This Naval station is in the district of North Carolina's Herbert Bonner, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and a leading budget-cutter. His votes have been considered anti-Navy.

You can't get anyone at the Navy Department to admit this, but it seems highly unusual that the Elizabeth City Naval base should be closed, for two reasons:

1. It is a blimp base used to patrol the Atlantic coast for submarines; and more Russian subs have been lurking off the coast than ever, watching guided missile operations.

2. Elizabeth City happens to have the only two hangars that can accommodate the new blimps ordered by the Navy. When they are delivered, they'll have no place to go except Elizabeth City — unless new hangars are built, which would certainly be no economy.

If you ask anyone at the Navy about this, all you get are smiles. However, it certainly looks as if Congressman Bonner is getting stepped and slapped hard.

From Washington—

The Mao-Khrushchev 'Debate'

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

There is one good way to determine the single most tell-tale passage in Nikita Khrushchev's hour-long television interview.

Was there anything in Mr. Khrushchev's unrehearsed answers which the Soviet people were not allowed to read?

Mr. Drummond

There was. One question and answer did not appear in Pravda. When the interview was being readied to appear in the newspapers of Red China, the Chinese censor focused his eye on the same passage and he, too, struck it out.

The censored passage reaches to the heart of Communist principles. It marks a widening disagreement between Chinese Communist thinking and Soviet Communist thinking. It is giving the Chinese Communists large and, to Moscow, disturbing, influence among the satellite Communist regimes which are eagerly looking for ways to turn away from Kremlin leadership.

What Khrushchev Said

Because, obviously, there is more than meets the eye here — so much more that it has not yet been allowed to meet the eyes of the Russian and Chinese people at all — it is well to look at exactly what Mr. Khrushchev said. Here is the text of the translation:

Mr. Schorr (CBS correspondent): "Mr. Khrushchev, a recent statement from Peking said that in a socialist state there can exist contradictions between the masses and the leaders. I wonder if, in republishing that in Pravda, . . . the Soviet Communists accept this idea, and what are the implications of it for the Soviet Union?"

Mr. Khrushchev: "Each socialist or capitalist country has its own course of development and its own stages of development . . . each people have their own habits, customs, its own history and the Communist party of the country concerned should take that into account. Our Chinese friends have many original ideas, which they are implementing in the course of socialist construction in their own country. They are giving birth to new ideas, too, which take into consideration the specific conditions in China . . . there is no contradiction with any Marxist-Leninist ideas in this respect."

Mr. Schorr: "But are you saying these contradictions do not exist in the Soviet Union today?"

Mr. Khrushchev: "We believe that we have no contradictions of that nature."

Conflict Cited

There is a direct conflict between the new Communist doctrine enunciated by Mao Tse-Tung — "that contradictions exist between the masses and their (Communist) leaders" — and Khrushchev's effort to maintain the pretense that a Communist dictatorship always acts in the interests of its people.

In recent weeks Mao has unfolded his "new doctrine" in two secret speeches, only extracts from which have appeared in the Chinese press. His theme has been that the Communist masses should have the right to talk back to the government, air their grievances, strike if necessary, and that the Communist officials had better pay attention.

Mao appears to be seeking to soften in China the kind of discontent which led to riot and revolt in Eastern Europe. At the same time he is propounding a doctrine which Moscow doesn't like, which the anti-Soviet Communists of Poland and elsewhere in Eastern Europe do like, and, to the Kremlin's dismay, he is beginning to establish Chinese Communist influence in the increasingly unsettled satellite world.

Mao Is Quoted

But is Mao really softening the Chinese dictatorship — or only talking about it? Note this paragraph from his partially reported speeches of last February:

"In dealing with enemies it is necessary to use force. We in China also have used force to deal with enemies of the people. The total number of those who were liquidated by our security forces numbers 800,000. This was the figure up to 1954. Since then we are no longer using methods of terror."

Here Mao blandly condones terror against those who disagree with Communism. If the rest of his statement means anything, it means that the Chinese Reds sheathe the use of terror only when they are sure that other methods of "persuasion" will be adequate.

"That's like swearing off strong drink except when you're thirsty.

At the White House—

Ike's Stand on 1960

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

Some of President Eisenhower's chief political advisers want him to come out in advance of the 1960 political conventions with his preference for a Republican presidential nominee—in terms that are unmistakable.

They are proceeding cautiously, however, lest they stir up some resistance from Eisenhower, as well as some GOP hopefuls.

These advisers do not envision a "this-or-nothing" approach by the President. Their reasoning is that the convention could remain "open," with Eisenhower indicating his preference without being so direct as to make it appear that he is trying to dictate to the GOP nominating session.

These politicians reason that Eisenhower's personal popularity will remain high as long as he is in office.

The GOP high command is not unanimous on the issue. Those who don't agree with a pre-convention statement are firm believers in what has become almost a truism with numerous professional politicians.

A President, no matter how popular personally, cannot transmit his public appeal to another man with any degree of certainty or success.

Flight in the helicopters to be used by the White House in next month's big civil defense evacuation exercise is surprisingly comfortable.

In test flights staged from behind the White House last week, reporters traveled aboard two Army twin-roter "workhorse" helicopters. The chairs were the type aboard commercial airliners, complete to comfortable headrests and shiny ashtrays.

But for all the spic and span interior decor, nothing stops the threshing sound of the two rotors. After a flight of 40 minutes, the passengers were about half-deaf for 20 or 30 minutes.

The only people in the six-helicopter flight who could identify the federal reformatory at Lorton, Va., from the air were the reporters and photographers.

A group of Virgin Island senators called on Eisenhower the other day after being delayed in their visit for two days because of the President's illness. They presented a bottle of rum produced in their home islands.

The President accepted the gift graciously, but shook his head in regret. He was just recovering from a painful stomach upset.

"I do appreciate it," he told the delegation, "but I shudder to think what it would do to me if I took a drink of it now."

Behind The News—

Visit by Premier of Japan Seen Important

By CHARLES M. McCANN

A new basis for Japanese American relations will be worked out in Washington this week.

Japanese Premier Nobusuke Kishi is to arrive in the capital on Wednesday for three days of talks with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Mr. McCann

His visit comes at a moment when trade with Communist China, the proposed suspension of nuclear weapons tests and the status of American troops in Japan are getting headlines.

But the diminutive, hard-working, keen-witted Japanese leader will discuss with Eisenhower and Dulles the whole range of Japanese-American relations and problems concerning the whole Far East.

May Strengthen Relations

It is pretty certain, though it will not be announced, that the eventual recognition of Communist China by the United States and Japan and the future of the Chinese Nationalist government in Formosa will be important topics for discussion.

There is every reason to believe the conference will strengthen Japanese-American relations.

Kishi is firmly committed to a pro-United States, pro-Western policy.

He is aware, however, that Japan not only is a leading Far Eastern power but is reassuming its place as a world power.

As a Japanese, he must avoid giving his political opponents any opportunity for an accusation that he is making Japan an American satellite.

As the leader of his country's 90 million people he must also raise a number of issues which concern Japan and the United States.

Wants to Increase Trade

Kishi wants to increase Japanese trade with Red China. China is potentially Japan's biggest market, but Kishi wants to make the increase in agreement with the United States, not arbitrarily as Britain did.

He does not intend to bring up the case of William S. Girard, the American soldier accused of killing a Japanese woman on an Army firing range in Japan. But he intends to discuss broader issues of the present "status of forces" agreement, for instance the right of the American command to move troops at will anywhere in Japan.

Kishi intends also to ask that Japan be given some voice in the administration of Okinawa, which now is the chief American military base in the Far East. Eventually, he wants Okinawa handed back to Japan.

May Ask Nuclear Ban

Japan's trade with the United States, which some American industrialists want to restrict sharply to protect their own products, will be another point for discussion.

Kishi is certain to urge earnestly that the United States work out an agreement with Soviet Russia and Britain for the banning of nuclear weapons tests. Japan is caught between Russia on one side and the United States and Britain on the other as regards the present testing grounds for more powerful nuclear weapons.

But he may also ask that the United States supply Japan's new army with tactical atomic weapons. He said recently that in this day of scientific development, Japan cannot defend itself with bamboo spears.

There is one good augury for Kishi's visit—he shares Eisenhower's enthusiasm for golf and will play a round with the President on his first day in Washington.

National Affairs—

Girard Case Seen in Light of U. S. Policy

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Peace makes strange bedfellows, too, just as politics does. Perhaps that explains some of the misunderstanding and resentment in the United States about the plight of Specialist 3/C William S. Girard.

Mr. Wilson

It is possible, also, that U. S. citizens have not been able to adjust themselves to the rapidly shifting objectives of American foreign policy. Most Americans now alive adjusted themselves a very few years ago to foreign policy objectives which basically were these:

—Kill Germans; destroy their homes and their industry.

—Ditto for the Japanese.

United States foreign policy now is based on two considerations of fact which it would have been almost treasonable to suggest during war time. The facts are these:

—Germany now is the free nations' anchor man in the West against Communism.

—Japan ditto in the East.

Midwest Farm Boy

Such considerations of fact as these have led to some events which scarcely could have been foreseen nor credited if they had been suggested a few short years ago. For example:

Girard, a Midwest farm boy, has been handed over by the U.S. government to be tried by Japanese courts on charges of shooting and killing a Japanese woman on a U.S. target range in Japan. This has caused resentment in the United States.

U.S. officials are aware that failure to turn Girard over for Japanese trial would cause even greater resentment in Japan.

This situation caused Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) to say a few days ago that the United States is proceeding on a course of "mass appeasement" of the Japanese people — and others — in making the status of forces agreements with foreign nations. These agreements provide for the trial of American military personnel by local courts for offenses committed while not in the performance of duty.

The other side of the argument is provided by the Formosa incident in which Chinese rioters sacked the U.S. Embassy. The riot took place after a U.S. military court tried an American soldier on charges of shooting a Chinese peeping tom. The soldier was cleared and released.

Focuses Attention

However that may be, the Girard incident has focused the attention of American citizens on their changed relations with the late enemy.

The change is not only in the East. The Western enemy's role of friend and ally against the Kremlin long since was formalized by admission of West Germany to membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. American officials over the years had been preparing public opinion in the United States for something like that.

President Eisenhower visited Germany in 1951 as the supreme commander of Atlantic defenses. It was a good will visit during which Eisenhower told the Germans "bygones are bygones" so far as World War II enmity was concerned. He said the Germans could become equal partners with the West and that he did not question the "honor" of most Germans against whom he fought.

The partnership has become steadily more secure, so firmly established by now that the nomination on Feb. 7 of this year of German Lt. Gen. Hans Speidel to be commander of NATO ground forces in Central Europe caused hardly a ripple in the United States.

They wore solid rings of matching taffeta on their heads with circular veils and carried cascade bouquets of carnations and white sweet peas. There were white carnations in Mrs. McAlpine's bouquet and pink in those carried by the bridesmaids.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Dunn selected a softly draped colony blue silk chiffon dress with white accessories and a white rose corsage. The mother of the bridegroom selected a dress of beige imported linen with insets of lace and a scoop neckline. She wore rose colored accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Reception Held

Immediately following the ceremony there was a reception in the Frank P. Miller parlor. The bridal table was centered with a five tiered wedding cake topped with sweet peas. The bouquets of the attendants encircled the cake. Reception aides were Mrs. James Kessel, Mrs. Truman Wheeler, Mrs. Charles Boyd and Marilyn DeMarsh.

Guests attended from Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Beckley, W. Va., and Ripley, W. Va., as well as area towns.

May Fire Aides at Rostraver

Here's a new twist Usually the head coach takes the rap for losing football seasons, but at Rostraver they're supposedly getting ready to fire the assistants. Rumor has it that "at least" two Rostraver grid aides will get the ax. At any rate, no assistants have been assigned yet for the coming season . . . Incidentally head coach Wade Bender has been hired for 1957. Ditto for basketball boss George Everett. Both of those men had to reapply for their jobs. Rostraver had adopted a new policy which requires coaches to apply for their positions each year. In effect, all Leopard coaching jobs are vacated after every season . . . How's that for working under pressure!

Jim Sibley, new head basketball coach at Greensburg High, is the son of a minister. He had a great record at Shannock Valley . . . Incidentally Sibley will receive a total of $6,650 at Greensburg. He'll get $5,600 for teaching history, $700 for coaching basketball and $350 for assisting in football . . . Bob Motil, former Redstone High athlete, is currently hitting at a .345 clip for Shawnee, Okla., a Brooklyn Dodger farm club in the Class D Sooner State League . . . Dick Guesman, the big Brownsville tackle who promises to be a standout at West Virginia University this season, is warming up as a construction worker during the summer months.

McIlvain Still 'Pretty Good'

"He's still a pretty good pitcher." That was the comment of Van Voorhis manager John Barkey after 74 year old John (Scissors) McIlvain pitched a three-hitter at Donora the other day but lost 2-1. Barkey, who caught McIlvain, had this to say: "He has good stuff yet and throws a nice knuckler. He had them popping up throughout the game. Except for two unearned runs he would have won. What a guy?" . . . They're raving at Pitt about Brownsville's Andy Sepsi. Enthuses publicity man Beanie Cook: "Sepsi will probably develop into the finest back at Pitt since Marshall Goldberg lugged the pigskin." . . . The 18-year old Sepsi is spending the summer months with a highway department work crew.

The Fayette County Coaches Association, in cooperation with the Legion and VFW, has set up an annual scholarship worth $400 for the outstanding county athlete. Coaches will vote for the winner, who will be announced at the all-star intra-county grid game in Washington this August . . . Ken Barbao, who hurled in the Pittsburgh Pirate farm system, is now twirling for his hometown Donora nine in the Mon Valley League . . . Did you know that Branch Rickey, the former Pirate general manager, played 119 games in the major leagues as a catcher? He hit .239.

Odds Against Gus Brickner

The odds are four to one against anyone successfully swimming the English channel. For Charleroi's Gus Brickner, the odds are even higher now that he will ever get a crack at the Channel. Brickner was scheduled to leave July 14 for England. However he revealed the other day that the owners of a nearby lake, who he says promised to sponsor his trip, have now backed out. Gus still has hopes, though. He's banking on his friends to supply much-needed funds to finance the excursion. Brickner estimates that the minimum cost of the attempt will be $5,500 . . . A member of the championship New Kensington High football team back in the late forties — Dick Brown — is scheduled to return to his Alma Mater as an assistant football coach next season. He colleged at Wayne.

Stranahan Heads for England after Open

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) — The big Hogan is the greatest—and probably still will win the Open plane thundered up from the To- Jedo Airport and broke through on a solid top of a solid layer of thick white clouds and the handsome blond man looked out the window mus- ingly.

"I've been on top of a lot of clouds," he smiled slowly, "and I've been under a few, too."

Frank Stranahan ran a big, sun-tanned hand along his square cut jaw and looked out the win- now again. He had just finished in a tie for 13th in the U.S. Open, played over his home Inverness course, and now he was off on the first leg of his 18th trip to England to compete in the British Open.

Mayer Win No Upset

"I don't see why they call it an upset when Dick Mayer beat Cary Middlecoff," he said reflectively. "Everybody in the Open has a chance or he wouldn't be there. Even British Amateurs in which he played and another time was run- ner-up. The week before the Open he was second best Ben Hogan," he added wist- fully. "Now he comes to win it. They forget that Fleck had been playing golf for 10 or 15 years. It's a matter of personal progress and he came by it honestly. Fleck's father was one of Toledo's most successful industrialists. Fleck himself was those 12 who finished ahead of him had been able to beat him on his own lot.

"When they held the Open at Inverness in 1920 Ted Ray drove the green on that dog-legged seventh hole four times," he said. "Now the manufacturers say every year that they add 10 yards to the ball. Well, in just 10 years that should add up to 100 yards. But the closest anybody came to the seventh green this time was 20 yards short of the green."

Frank Likes Britain

He was watching the fat white clouds below again now, his mind leaping ahead and on across the ocean. Now his mind was on top of them.

"Funny," he said slowly, "but British galleries are different from ours. They appreciate the play but they don't yell and whis- like we do."

Britain is a happy place to Stranahan. He won two of the sev- British Amateurs in which he played and another time was run- ner-up. Bucs Top Milwaukee By 7 to 5

ST LOUIS (UP) - The Pittsburgh Pirates came to town today to launch a four game series with the St. Louis Cardinals on the crest of a come-from-behind 7-5 victory over the league-leading Milwaukee Braves.

The Bucs put together two triples, a single and two safe bunts in the ninth inning Monday night to score four runs after starting the inning behind 4-3.

Gene Freese launched the big inning with a triple after one out. He scored on pinch-hitter Ramon Mejias' single. Mejias made it to third when Andy Pafko threw wild to the plate and scored on a bunt by Hank Foiles who was tripled home by Bob Skinner. Skinner scored on Paul Smith's safe bunt.

The Braves closed out the game with a short-lived rally that gave them one run.

The Braves took a two-run lead in the second and added another in the fourth before the Bucs tallied in the sixth on Gene Baker's third homer of the season. In the seventh, the Pirates scored two runs when Freese singled, Jim Pendleton walked, and Roberto Clemente doubled both home.

The Bravest ook a 4-3 lead in the lower half of the seventh when Eddie Mathews singled home Billy Bruton from third.

Hopes to Climb In PRA Point Standings Tonight

Don Dahle, currently the hottest driver in the Pittsburgh Racing Assn., will try to climb another notch in the point standings at Washington Raceway tonight.

The Bridgeville driver has been creeping up in the standings for some time but he gained his first feature victory of the season Saturday night at South Park to grab sixth place from Pete Panaia.

A good showing could net Dahle fifth or possibly fourth place in the PRA standings — within striking distance of front-running Dick Linder and Herb Scott.

Linder currently is setting the pace with 622 points to 599 for Scott. But Scott runs better at Washington with three feature victories there against one for Linder.

Donora Defeats Charleroi, 3-2

Donora made the most of one hit to defeat Charleroi, 3-2, in Mon Valley League baseball last night.

The lone Dragon safety was a three-bagger by Ken Barbao in the second inning with two mates aboard. The other Donora run was unearned.

Both Charleroi tallies also came on errors. As a matter of fact, two of the three Charleroi hits were of the infield variety and the other was a blooper.

John Chatlak, of Donora, and Fred Briggs, of Charleroi, hooked up in the duel.

Score by innings:

Charleroi	001	000	1—2 3 0

No-Hitter in Township League

Bobby Miller fanned 14 as he opened the PONY League season in Washington Twp. with a brilliant no-hitter yesterday.

Miller pitched Rod-Gun to an easy 16-0 success over the Merchants.

In Little League openers in the township, the Merchants took the Two. Lions, 5-4; Naomi handled the Fayette City Lions, 7-2; and PTA took the Garagemen, 5-1.

MVL All Star Team Picked

A Mon Valley Baseball League all-star team was selected last night during a meeting at the Monessen Sport Shop.

Tentatively the MVL stars will meet a similar club from the Greater Pittsburgh League on July 6 in Charleroi. The game will feature a veterans week celebration in the cross-river community.

Don Mains, of Perryopolis, will manage the club. He will be assisted by Harry Sickels, of Donora, and Frank Furiga of New Eagle.

Mains will announce his pitching selections in a few days.

First Team

Here are the first team choices:

Mike Young, Monessen, George Zuraw, Charleroi, and Henry Studnicki, Fayette City, in the outfield; Ray Barli, Charleroi, at first; Harry Muckle, Fayette City, at second; Mel Mills, Donora, at short, Tommy Havadich, Perryopolis, at third;: and George Quatro, Van Voorhis, behind the plate.

Those players must start the all-star attraction.

Reserve outfielders will include Jim Lazzari, Charleroi; Fran Ceslashi, Fayette City; John Simchak, Donora; and Ron Danko, Monessen.

Infield Reserves

The infield reserves will include Bob Mastracci, Monessen; Joe Reale, New Eagle; Mains; Larry Papini, Charleroi, and Mike Shuback, Van Voorhis.

Carmen Cappelli of Charleroi will be the second catcher.

The all-stars were selected in voting by the league managers.

Valley League Withdraws Ruling Against Perry

The Mon Valley League last night voted to withdraw a forfeit ruling against Perryopolis.

Perry had been tagged with a loss after Commissioner George Kuvinka learned that an ineligible player was used in a recent 2-1 win at West Newton.

Since the player involved did not enter the game until the final inning, the league decided to be lenient. The game will be continued from that point.

The league, meeting in Monessen, also okayed the use of jerseys for pitchers, providing the sleeves are intact.

It was also agreed to give West Newton until June 27 to sign players. Other teams have offered to bolster the cellar-dwellers, who have yet to win after 15 starts.

Braves, Hawks Win in Rec. League Openers

Braves topped the Yankees in Minor League play, 10-3, while the Blackhawks handled the White Sox, 7-5, in Prep League action yesterday.

Ronald Junk pitched a five hitter for the Braves, fanning 10. Alfred Little backed him with a home run.

For the Yankees, John Mutschler made the circuit tour.

The defending Prep League champion Blackhawks got off to a flying start, thanks to great two-hit pitching by Herb Comet.

Dan Barton was the big star on offense, with a double and three singles in four trips to the plate.

Score by innings:

Yankees	201	000—	3 5 2
Braves	006	40x—	10 4 2

New Eagle Raps West Newton, 14-1

Bob Gondos led the winners with a double and two singles.

Score by innings:

Former Wisconsin Tackle with Cards

CHICAGO (UP) — Bob Konovsky, a 245-pound former Wisconsin tackle now in military service, has signed with the Chicago Cardinals for the 1957 season, managing director Walter Wolfner announced today.

Konovsky, the Cards' seventh draft choice last year, played defensive tackle and offensive guard with the Cards last season before going into service. He was scheduled to be discharged in August.

Fayette City Slams Monessen

Valley League Pace Setters Clobber Ozarks by 11 to 2

Fayette City exploded for nine runs in the second inning to easily hammer Monessen, 11-2, in Mon Valley League baseball action at Ninth Street Park last night.

Henry Studnicki and Hal Parks featured the FC attack with two homers each. One of Studnicki's blasts came with the sacks jammed.

Ewing Bell also made the circuit tour for the power-laden visitors while Ron Danko did likewise for Monessen.

Don Young worked the route for FC, fanning six and throwing a nifty five hitter.

Monessen's ace, Bill Mitnick was tagged hard for the loss. He required second inning help from Myron Sepitko.

The visitors punched over a run in the first inning when Studnicki homered.

Big Inning

In the second inning, Parks started the fireworks with a round tripper. Bell singled and Ray Ermlich made first on an error. Sonny Trozzo bunted and the ball was tossed wildly into right field with both Bell and Ermlich coming across.

That seemed to upset Mitnick. Young followed with a single and Harry Muckle beat out a hit to deep short to load the bases.

Fran Celeaschi singled in Trozzo. Then Studnicki slapped his grand slammer.

Before the inning was over Bell homered again.

Sepitko came on at that point and pitched solid ball. The only run he gave up was Parks' homer in the fourth inning.

Avert Shutout

The Ozarks averted a shutout in the fourth with a two run outburst. Danko slapped a homer to start things. Neil Hill reached first on an error and came across on Mel Clickovich's second double of the game.

Clickovich wound up with three of the losers five hits.

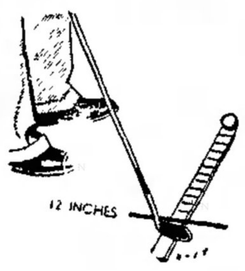
DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF



Uncontrolled Hook

A lot of things can cause a hook. It may be your grip or it may be that you are positioning the ball too far forward, thus allowing the hands to roll over before the ball is met.

But, if you can't stop hooking by correcting the grip and properly positioning the ball, better check your takeaway. By "takeaway" I mean the first 18 inches or so that the clubhead moves on the backswing. If you are bringing the clubhead back too much inside, you're wide open for a hook. On the takeaway, remember that the clubhead should move straight back away from the ball.

The best thing to do is pick a spot on the ground about a foot straight back from the ball. Then make sure your clubhead passes over this spot on the backswing.

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UP) — The latest brother act to hit the baseball trail could wind up as one of the best batteries in the International League this season.

Dick and Dave Ricketts, who earned more fame at Duquesne University for basketball than for baseball talent, currently are teammates on the Rochester Red Wings. But both belong to the St. Louis Cardinals.

There is a possibility Dave, fresh off the Duquesne campus, may be farmed out. But judging from his performances since joining the club last week, he could stick around.

Ellis (Cot) Deal, jack - of - all-trades playing manager of the Red Wings, is plenty high on the husky, 6-foot-catcher. Taking time out before pitching the nightcap of a twinbill, he passed on some words of praise.

Sees Good Combination

"Dave definitely is an outstanding prospect," said Deal. "If he keeps playing the way he started out he'll probably stay with us the rest of the season. He and Dick should make a good combination."

In his first assignment, Dave was behind the plate when Lynn Lovenguth pitched his initial shutout of the season as Rochester beat Richmond, 7-0. Dave made one hit in that game.

In his second full game, the younger Ricketts smacked four singles in five trips to the plate.

Brother Dick, a 6-foot-7 fastballing right-hander who played professional basketball with the Rochester Royals the past two winters, has earned Deal's praise as a front-line pitcher.

"He's looking better every game," said the Rochester pilot. "His breaking stuff is improving, and that'll help his effectiveness."

Pitcher Ricketts, who had a 9-8 mark with Allentown, Pa., last season, had a 4-1 record through last weekend even though he had to be lifted Sunday when the Rochester battery was Ricketts and Ricketts for the first time. Dave stayed behind the plate and Lovenguth came in to win as Rochester downed Richmond, 6-5, with a late rally.

Start In High School

The Pottstown, Pa., brothers played high school and American Legion baseball together. Later when Dick was a Duquesne senior and Dave a sophomore they helped the Dukes compile one of their best baseball records.

"We won 17 and lost 1 in 1955," said Dick adding, "I guess I won about five games with Dave behind the plate."

The older Ricketts has a lot of confidence in his younger brother, despite Dave's quick jump to triple-A ball.

"He looks real relaxed behind that plate," Dick said, "I think he'll make good."

Dick had this to say about his own career.

"If I can become a major leaguer," he said hopefully, "I'll give up basketball. . ."

Martinez Defeats Gavilan Again; Seeks Basilio

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UP) — Welterweight contender Vince Martinez, who beat ex-champion Kid Gavilan again Monday night, expects to fight Peter Waterman, British champion, at Newark, N.J., in July.

Sixth-ranking Martinez of Paterson, N.J., said today, "I want a shot at Carmen Basilio's world title, but if I can't have it I'll fight the British champ."

Manager Bill Daly said he would wait until Basilio had definitely signed to challenge Sugar Ray Robinson for the middleweight title or had agreed to defend the welter crown against Gaspar Ortega of Mexico, before accepting the Waterman fight.

Twenty-eight-year-old Martinez weighed 150¾ pounds to Gavilan's 147½ Monday night in their outdoor 10-rounder before an estimated 7,200 fans at Roosevelt Stadium.

Vince's harder punching with counter blows gave him referee Paul Cavalier's decision on a rounds basis, seven to three. There are no ring judges used in New Jersey. The United Press agreed, 6-3-1, and a ringside poll of writers favored Martinez 22-4-1.

Podres Sidelined With Arm Hurt; Alston Suspended

CINCINNATI (UP) — Manager Walt Alston of Brooklyn was serving the second day of a three-day suspension today but the Dodgers were far more concerned with the sidelining of their ace southpaw, Johnny Podres, who may be lost for several weeks.

Alston was notified of his suspension and a $75 fine arising from remarks he made to umpires Frank Secory and Bill Baker during the first game of a double-header against St. Louis Sunday. PeeWee Reese also was fined $50 for a run-in with Secory but he was not suspended.

Overshadowing the fines, however, was the news that both Podres and Sandy Koufax might be lost to the Dodgers for an indefinite period. Both pitchers underwent arm X-rays at Christ Hospital here Monday and the report on Podres was particularly discouraging.

Dr. George Ballou diagnosed Podres' ailment as an inflammation of the left elbow. The Dodger left hander flew back to New York immediately to undergo further examination.

X-rays taken of Koufax' left arm proved negative but rest and whirlpool treatments were prescribed.

Until Alston's suspension expires, coach Billy Herman will run the club.

Rookie Pitcher Fans Eleven as Dodgers Defeat Cincy, 7-2

By MILTON RICHMAN

The jubilant Brooklyn Dodgers felt something like a sweepstakes winner today, having collected on a "long shot" by the simple expedient of writing Danny McDevitt's name on a ticket.

They made out that ticket last Friday and it provided transportation for McDevitt from St. Paul to Brooklyn.

Who is this guy McDevitt?

That's a question even the Cincinnati Redlegs were asking today after the 25-year-old rookie southpaw, making his first big league appearance, struck out 11 of them Monday night and limited them to seven hits in pitching Brooklyn to within two games of the National League lead. The score was 7-2.

Bucs Beat Braves

In the only other game scheduled in the majors, Pittsburgh defeated league-leading Milwaukee 7-5. The Braves now lead the second-place Cardinals by one game.

McDevitt, called up by the Dodgers to take up some of the slack caused by the sidelining of Johnny Podres and Sandy Koufax, put on quite a show for the 14,595 fans at Crosley Field. Relying chiefly on a fast ball and sneaky curve, the sawed-off New York City native struck out at least one batter in every inning except the seventh and eighth.

McDevitt also drove in what proved to be the winning run with a nifty squeeze bunt during a three-run uprising against starter Johnny Klippstein in the second inning.

Gino Cimoli led off the frame with his ninth homer over the left field fence. Roy Campanella singled and Charley Neal drove him in with a triple. McDevitt then laid down his squeeze bunt to bring in Neal.

The Dodgers added three insurance runs on two hits in the ninth.

By losing, the Redlegs tumbled into fifth place, two percentage points behind Brooklyn.

Pittsburgh Rally Wins

Pittsburgh gained its victory over Milwaukee with a four - run rally in the ninth, featured by triples off the bats of Gene Freese and Bob Skinner.

With the Braves leading, 4-3, Freese, who collected four of Pittsburgh's 10 hits, tripled in the ninth and scored on Roman Mejias' pinch single. Mejias raced to third when Andy Pafko threw wildly to the plate and came home on Hank Foiles' bunt. Skinner then came through with his triple, scoring Foiles, and then scored himself on Paul Smith's bunt.

Reliever Bob Purkey was credited with the victory. Gene Baker homered for the Pirates.

The Braves rapped out 17 hits, including four by newly-acquired Red Schoendienst.

Brown, Julueta End Training

DENVER (UP) — Lightweight champion Joe Brown and challenger Orlando Zulueta ended three weeks of training Monday for Wednesday night's 15 - round title bout at the Denver Coliseum.

Both fight camps claim their fighters are in peak mental and physical condition.

Zulueta weighed 134½ pounds and Brown hit the lightweight limit of 135, as the two weighed in Monday for the press. The official weigh-in comes Wednesday.

Redskins Add Holy Cross End

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Washington Redskins added Holy Cross end Bob Dee to their 1957 roster today.

The 'Skins drafted Dee in 1955, but the big wingman has been serving as a Marine lieutenant for the past two years.

Washington also announced the signing of veteran tackle Volney Peters who has been in the National Football League for six years.

They open another home stand tonight against the Detroit Tigers.

Midget League Parents Will Meet Wednesday

Parents of Monessen Midget League football players will meet tomorrow at Memorial Civic Center at 8 p. m. to discuss plans for the upcoming concession project.

Harry McCraw, chairman of the concession committee, said that all MFL parents are asked to attend.

"The more parents who help, the easier the job will be," pointed out McCraw.

It is hoped that the mothers and fathers will operate the league's concession stands at Memorial Stadium this season. Revenue from that project is expected to be enough to keep the MFL financially sound.

Mrs. Carl Laszewski and Mrs. John Popovich have volunteered to encourage as many parents as possible to attend tonights meeting.

The 90-foot concession stand on the adult side of the Stadium will be in operation for the July 3 holiday fireworks program.

De Cola Earns Upset Decision

NEW YORK (UP) — Tony DeCola, young Brooklyn welterweight, should be tougher than ever to beat now that he has learned "it's a cinch" to box 10 rounds.

The 20-year-old former Golden Gloves performer engaged in his first 10-rounder Monday night and walked off with an upset split decision over Felix Chiocca of France in a widely-televised bout at St. Nicholas Arena. It was DeCola's sixth straight victory this year.

Using a sharp left at long range, DeCola piled up an early lead and appeared to get stronger as the bout progressed. Chiocca, who weighed 142 pounds to DeCola's 146, apparently was hampered by the fact he took the fight on a three-day notice. He was named only last Friday to substitute for Jimmy Archer, who was injured in training.

Sportsmen's Corner—

Bobwhite Quail Are Welcome in State

The bobwhite quail is most welcome on agricultural land because it is an ally of the farmer.

Bobwhite has a strong appeal, too, for bird dog owners. No wonder, then, that old-timers who hunted or farmed in Pennsylvania years ago assume a wistful look at mention of the little bombshell's name.

As a recent New Hampshire Fish and Game Department news item said (it's pretty much the Pennsylvania story):

"Many an explanation has been advanced to tell why the bobwhite has largely disappeared. Predators and over-hunting have been given most of the blame. There is, perhaps, a more logical reason. The quail is associated with grain fields adjacent to thickets and briar patches. Consequently, when the early settlers spread through the country and opened up the forests the bobwhite increased. In the early days, coming from the East Coast the bird followed the plow westward and northward, finding habitat conditions most ideal."

Many Quail Once

The Keystone state, also, boasted many quail years ago. But farming practices changed, and often with them the kinds of crops raised. Rail fences disappeared, natural foods and the safe travel lanes, necessities for "the farmer's friend", went with them.

Where grains were once grown pasture land often took over, and on many other acres tomatoes and potatoes replaced wheat, rye and grasses. Whole sections of the state were devoted to clean farming, and bare fencerows left no hiding place for bobwhite. Consequently our quail population steadily diminished.

The extremely severe winter of 1935-36 plummeted the population of this bird to near zero. But history tells us that other rigorous winters in past sometimes reduced quail by 75-80 per cent, following which the bird recovered.

Stocking Helps

Farmers and sportsmen would like the bobwhite to be as numerous again as it once was. Stocking helps, but it can be effective only to a point. Like other wild creatures the quail demands certain food and cover.

Conditions for humans have changed with progress. But the quail is adamant in its demand for the still necessary dense fencerows, thickets, and grain and weed fields near such natural protection.

Wishing will not bring the bobwhite back. But food and cover of the right kind, in quantities, would turn the trick.

Dog Troubles—

Game Protector Ralph Shank, Schuylkill County, is disturbed about uncontrolled dogs in his district. He says:

"Last month I received favorable reports about an old gobbler that established himself with three wild turkey hens in the vicinity of Outwood. Hopes were high for good turkey hunting in that vicinity this fall.

But three free-running dogs destroyed all of the turkeys. Such unwarranted predation sets our wild turkey program back so far it is almost impossible to make gains."

Practice Conservation

This spring James Banning, Fayette County Fish Warden, and Game Protector Alex Ziros attended a Wildlife Week program put on at the Connellsville Joint Senior High School by a class taught by a man effectionately called "Pop" Keatley.

Said Ziros: "We enjoyed the conservation skits acted out by the class. These youngsters accepted 500 evergreen seedlings and 800 shrub seedlings from the Game Commission's Howard Nursery for planting in depleted food and cover areas for wildlife."

Today in Congress—

Rights Bill Is Fought In House

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House today drove toward final passage of the civil rights bill in the face of a rearguard fight by Southerners.

The civil rights bloc pushed through tentative approval of the bill Monday. But final passage was put off over night because of a Southern maneuver.

The Southerners still planned to make a last try at blocking passage by demanding the bill be sent back to the committee with instructions to add the much-defeaed "jury trial" amendment.

But the House already has rejected four versions of the amendment that would guarantee jury trials in federal civil rights contempt cases.

Backers of the bill could look forward to only rougher days ahead in the Senate.

The Senate appeared virtually certain to bring the bill directly to the Senate floor for debate.

That would mean bypassing the Senate Judiciary Committee headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.), a segregationist leader. But the fight on the Senate floor was expected to be sharp and long.

Other congressional news:

Atoms: Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio) said he will fight to keep in Congress' hands final control over U.S. atomic materials that would be given to other nations under the "atoms for peace" treaty. Debate on the treaty moved into its second day. Leaders hoped to get it ratified by tonight.

Postal: A House appropriations subcommittee approved giving to the Post Office Department an extra 133 million dollars — $16,500,000 less than Postmaster Arthur E. Summerfield said he needed to maintain normal service beginning July 1. The House Appropriations Committee was expected to approve the 133 million. Subcommittee members said they expected Summerfield would be able to maintain normal service without the rest of the money.

Sports: Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.) said he sees no chance that Congress will grant professional sports full immunity from anti-trust laws. However, Keating—senior Republican on a subcommittee investigating pro sports—said he favors some exemption.

AEC: Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.M.) said President Eisenhower's new appointments to the Atomic Energy Commission faced long consideration by the joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee. Anderson is the ranking Senate member. Committee Chairman Carl T. Durham (D-N.C.) said he would still prefer reappointment of Thomas E. Murray whose term expires June 30.

TAKES OVER IN HAITI — Gen. Antonio Kebreau, Army Chief of Staff, overthrew Provisional President Daniel Fignole of Haiti in a bloodless coup and set up a military junta to rule the country and hold Presidential elections. Gen. Kebreau heads the junta. Fignole went into exile. It was the sixth time that rule of Haiti has been switched since President Magloire was ousted.

LONDON (UP) — An expedition plans to survey with the latest electronic devices the depths of Scotland's Loch Ness to determine whether the "sea monster" is real or a myth

The plans for a full scientific expedition to the Loch where "eyewitnesses" have reported sighting a serpent-like "monster" over 50 years, were announced here Monday.

The "monster" purportedly has been photographed, sketched and written about It has attracted countless tourists to the Loch in the heart of Scotland

Jour G. st an official of a company which specializes in television radio and electronic equipment announced an expedition will go to the Loch in mid-August "to find out whether there really is a monster"

The Loch he said would be sounded and surveyed "from end to end and from top to bottom"

Influenza Experts Are Taking no Chances on New Epidemic Spread

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UP) — Doctors call it "the great pandemic"

It went over the world in three lethal waves, starting in May, 1918. By the time the third wave subsided in the spring of 1919, it had claimed nearly 15 million lives. And it had instilled in the hearts of health officials everywhere a lasting fear of influenza.

Nearly 40 years have passed since that "pandemic," or worldwide epidemic, of "Spanish flue." Many lesser influenza epidemics have come and gone. Medical science has developed vaccines against influenza, and antibiotic drugs to treat its complications. A whole generation has grown up which regards flu as an uncomfortable but relatively mild illness—not much worse than a bad cold.

To members of this generation, it may be difficult to understand why the current epidemic in the Far East has started alarm bells ringing in public health offices the world over.

"The probability of another 1918 is slight," said Dr Carl C Dauer, top influenza expert in the U.S. Public Health Service. "But we cannot assume that it is an impossibility."

No Indication Whatever

So far, Dauer emphasized, there is "no indication whatever" that the present outbreak in the Orient will lead to "another 1918."

This year's epidemic, which began in Hong Kong about April 18 afflicted about 1 million persons and caused about 1 000 deaths during its first two months of rapid spread By the standards of 1918, when 200 million people were stricken in every country of the globe, this is still a "mild" one

Most of the deaths have occurred among persons already weakened by chronic disease, old age or hunger. The great majority of patients recover after three or four days of fever and general malaise.

Influenza is one of the most highly contagious diseases known. Quarantine has proved ineffective in halting its spread in the past.

With more than 1 000 travelers a day returning to America from the Far East, health officials consider it a foregone conclusion that the "Oriental flu" will reach this country and probably cause some scattered local epidemics this summer.

But there is no likelihood of a major U.S. epidemic before fall.

Some experts believe the virus—in the Far East outbreak—a brand new strain will die out before cold weather, others think there will be enough live virus still around this fall to set off a considerable U.S epidemic.

Why not start a mass vaccination program at once to guard Americans against any chance of a serious flue epidemic this fall or winter?

Vaccine Being Tested

Drug manufacturers have developed an experimental vaccine against the new Hong Kong strain of virus. It is being tested by the National Institute of Health, and the military may order 4 million doses for servicemen.

But the Public Health Service is holding off a decision on civilian inoculations for several reasons.

—Vaccination against influenza is still in the developmental stage, and no vaccine has yet been perfected which gives sure, long-lasting protection

—Mass production of influenza vaccine is limited by the availability of fertile chicken eggs, the best growing medium. Summer is the season when fertile eggs are scarcest, and meeting the prospective military order may send drug manufacturers on quite an egg-hunt.

—In any event, the military order will tie up maximum vaccine production facilities for 6 to 8 weeks. This will give the Public Health Service, and its new influenza advisory committee, time to watch the progress of the Far East epidemic and appraise the pros and cons of a civilian inoculation program in this country.

Ban on Check Cashing Extended

HARRISBURG (UP) —Gov George M. Leader today signed legislation extending the ban on cashing of checks by liquor establishments

The new law prevents such establishments from cashing unemployment compensation "or any other relief checks" Currently, the law applied to payroll and public assistance checks.

The governor also signed a bill authorizing second to eighth class counties to establish fire training schools for paid and volunteer fire companies. The legislation set a $500 limit to be spent on the training by second and fourth class counties in a fiscal year.

The evening of June 23 is a holiday for Norsemen, set aside to welcome the warmth of summer with bonfires It is called St John's Eve or Mid-summer Eve

New Weapon in Medical Fight

CHICAGO (UP)—Abbott Laboratories today announced development of a compound which is expected to give physicians a new weapon in the fight against atherosclerosis.

The compound, named Saff, was derived from the safflower oils, formerly used primarily in the manufacture of paints.

Atherosclerosis, characterized by a thickening and fatty degeneration of the inner coat of the arteries, is responsible for more than 200,000 deaths a year in the United States, Abbott said.

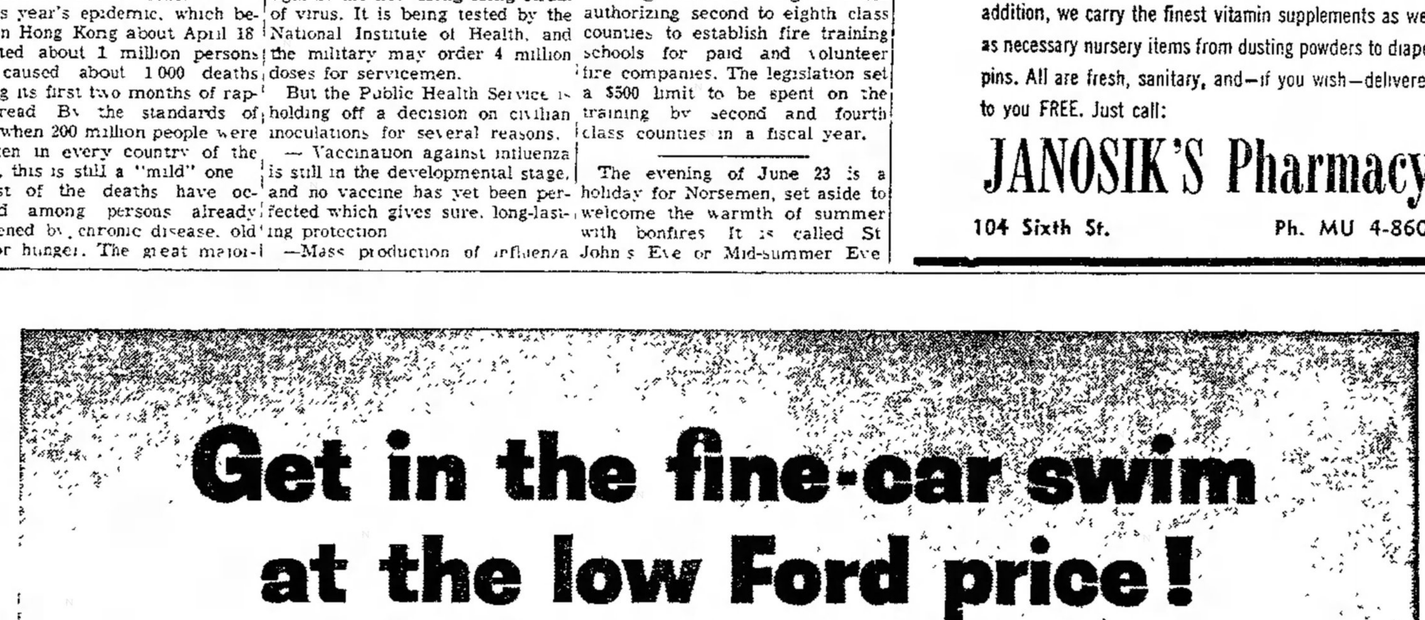
Get in the fine-car swim at the low Ford price!



America's favorite convertible is one of 21 Ford models for 1957

There's no need to pay a "fancy price" to enjoy fine-car luxury. Ford is lowest priced of the low-price three, yet offers values you'd expect only in cars costing far more!*

To start with, you can easily pay twice the money, and not find lines that can hold a candle to Ford's for lowness, loveliness, or just plain good taste.

But step inside. That's when you'll find the real evidence of Ford's quality!

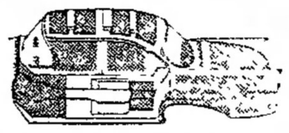
And, on the way in, note that Ford offers door checks that hold doors open in either of two positions—for easy entrance or exit. A little thing. But, in a fine car, why not? Then, inside, notice how comfortable those plush, foam-rubber seats are. They'll stay that way. And on long trips. For they're scientifically contoured over non-sag springs. Your rear-seat passengers are treated extra kindly, too—with spring assists to help them open and close the doors—with the most leg room in Ford's field!

Fine cars are smooth—and that's another place Ford really shows its stuff!

Ford delivers its famous V-8 power smooth as a whisper. That's because only Ford takes the pains to electronically balance each engine while running under its own power. Not even the makers of the most costly cars go this far to bring you super-smooth performance!

Ford rides fine-car smooth and quiet, too. You can thank the new "Taner Ford" for that. Ford, for instance, has a swept-back front suspension that actually "rolls with the punch" of every road bump.

Ford's rear springs automatically adjust to give the right ride for every road. And Ford keeps things quiet, with the most sound insulation in its field.



Fine cars are built to stay solid. So's Ford!

Ford has the only frame in its field to make use of rugged tubular steel beams. No car at the price offers so many roof-strengthening beams. Expensive cars aren't built of thicker body steel or with sounder engineering skill. Then, of course, in Ford you can have all the power assists and other conveniences found in fine cars. And they cost far less in Ford.* Yes sir! In every feature, every part, Ford is the fine car at half the fine-car price. Come in and see!

Get in on the fun and savings now in the new kind of FORD

'Pick-up Man' Not Subject to Gambling Tax

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that a numbers "pick-up man" is not subject to the federal gambling tax imposed by Congress in 1951.

The 7-1 decision affirmed a ruling by the Third U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia. This court had reversed the conviction of Victor Calamaro, a salaried runner whose job was to collect betting slips and take them to the "bank."

Justice John M. Harlan, speaking for the majority, said "Congress did not choose to subject all employes of gambling enterprises to the tax."

The decision added that "neither we nor the commissioner (of Internal Revenue) are authorized to rewrite the statute simply because we may feel that the scheme it creates could be improved upon."

The federal tax is $50 a year, plus 10 per cent of the amount wagered. Congress enacted the law following 1950-51 hearings conducted by a Senate Crime Committee headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.).

Senate Probe To Begin into Economic Policies

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) opened a broad Senate investigation of government economic policies today with the statement that world confidence in the American dollar is the chief restraint on Russian aggression.

Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey, the dominant figure in framing economic policies for the Eisenhower administration, was called as the first witness in the inquiry being handled by Byrd's Senate Finance Committee.

In his opening statement, Byrd said the committee wanted to know why taxes, interest rates, public and private debt, the cost of living and the federal budget are so high.

He said the investigation would be the first full-dress study of fiscal and money policy since one conducted by a government commission in 1908.

"The immediate occasion for this study is the existing credit and interest situation and, more important, inflation which has started again with its ominous threat to fiscal solvency, sound money and individual welfare," he said.

15 Million Starve, Red Radio Claims

TOKYO (UP) — Fifteen million persons in famine-stricken Hopeh Province are facing starvation, Radio Peiping reported today.

The broadcast said some 20 million tons of food have been sent from other sections of Communist China to aid the suffering residents in Eastern Hopeh. Hopeh is in Northeast China.

Peiping did not disclose the reason for the famine.

Honest! Officer: Tiger Ate Driver's License

WASHINGTON (UP) — If a policeman roars up to James D. Haase today and demands to see his driver's license, he can look at him innocently and say:

"I'm sorry. A tiger ate it."

The 27-year-old Washington resident wrote home applying for a duplicate.

Haase wrote that he joined a small safari near Udorn in Thailand to hunt a tiger who had been dining of late on the local livestock.

"I am an amateur squirrel hunter back home," he said. "But I decided here was an opportunity to prove myself 'the great white hunter.'"

Night. Haase stood in a bamboo thicket. The tiger roared. His yellow eyes gleamed in the jungle darkness. Haase aimed his rifle. He fired. The wounded beast fled.

But Haase said he didn't give up.

They tracked the tiger to a cave. Then, figuring that the tiger was dead, Haase and a guide were lowered into the cave's mouth.

They lit a torch. They crept forward. The tiger roared. They left quickly.

The guides said there was an easier way. They lit a fire at the cave's mouth and asphyxiated the tiger.

Haase said at about this time he noticed his wallet with his driver's license was missing.

But, he said, when they pulled the dead tiger from the cave and cut him open, there in the tiger's stomach was one chewed wallet.

And that's how it happened, officer. Honest.

'This Is Your Life' Subject Hit by Jinx

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—What happens to the tearful, happy subjects of "This Is Your Life?"

To singer Mae Williams, recovering from a broken back and a bout with polio, appearing on the sudsy show Feb. 9, 1955, seemed a stroke of good fortune. Master-of-ceremonies Ralph Edwards happily announced that a New York night club job, a TV series, a beautiful bracelet were to be hers.

Aline Mosby

But since then what has happened to Mae would make another weepy "This Is Your Life" program. She was hit by the prize show "jinx"—not a superstition, but a disrupting of her normal life that often hits excited winners of fame and fortune on television.

Her "prize" of a singing job at Monte Proser's La Vie Club in New York never came about

Dispute With Manager

"Ralph Edwards did his part, but my manager and I couldn't agree," explained Mae. "I believe he asked too much money, and we never got together on a deal and then La Vie closed, so that took care of that!

"I was offered singing jobs all over the country. But my manager kept asking more money because of the 'This Is Your Life' show—so I never got any of the jobs.

"We shot two episodes of my filmed TV series, and then that bogged down and never was finished or sold."

After a blow-up, Mae and her manager parted company.

"I couldn't get a job for $4 a day," she said.

Mae, known as the "hard-luck" singer had to hock the gold bracelet Edwards gave her on the show (she since retrieved it from the pawn shop). She had to sell her house.

Father Has Stroke

The beautiful new car that was to have been one of her TV prizes never came through. Viewers, she says, objected to celebrities receiving the cars, so the practice was stopped with her.

She opened a little nightclub here but had to close when the rent was doubled. Her father also had a stroke.

"Then I won a job in Bakersfield (Calif.) and my life began to go up," she smiled.

She met nightclub comic Vic Perry. After one date he proposed to her in the middle of his floor show, and one date later they were married last November.

Vic got Mae a record contract at Verve. With the movie projector she won on "This Is Your Life" he showed the pilot film of her TV series — and it finally opened on a local station to good reviews two weeks ago.

"The first call after my show was from Ralph Edwards," she beamed. "He also sent me roses.

"Now that my life has settled down, all the nice things he prophesied would happen to me are finally happening."

Ava Gardner Comes Home to Small Town

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (UP)—Ava Gardner, her marriage to Frank Sinatra on the rocks and her newest flame on her arm, blew into her old hometown Monday night to wish her brother well on the road of matrimony.

Beauteous Ava, making her first trip in five years to this little Carolina town known best for its country ham and Ava Gardner, was accompanied by dark-haired, handsome Italian comedian Walter Chiari.

They refused to discuss romance—their own.

Chiari, wearing an open-throated informal sports shirt with the sleeves rolled up, clasped the hands of Miss Gardner's sisters and pumped the hand of her only brother, Jack Gardner.

Gardner, an oil dealer here, will be wed next month to Miss Rose Darby of Vidalia, Ga. They will be honored at a party Thursday at the nearby Selma Country Club.

Avoid High Altitudes With Heart, Lung Ills

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Planning a vacation in the mountains this year?

It's a wonderful idea — providing you don't have severe heart or lung trouble.

As a general rule, persons with either of these ailments find it difficult to breathe at high altitudes. The reason is simple: the higher you go, the lighter the air becomes and the less oxygen pressure there is.

All of us need oxygen. In fact, we can't do without it for much longer than a minute without losing consciousness. If we were to go for five minutes without any oxygen at all, our nervous system and brain would be irreparably damaged.

How much oxygen we need depends, of course, upon our health and our activities.

If we exercise, become excited or have a fever, we'll need much more than when we are resting comfortably.

Only about 21 per cent of the air we breathe is oxygen.

With less air density, then, there naturally is less oxygen, so you have to put forth more effort to breathe in order to obtain a sufficient amount. If you have a crippled heart or lung, this extra effort eventually might prove a great strain.

Symptoms of oxygen defiency vary, but they usually include dizziness and nausea. If it develops gradually the victim may lose his appetite, feel tired, become mentally sluggish, have a poor memory and be belligerent and stubborn.

There is another thing to consider, too.

If you have heart or lung trouble, don't plan any long flights unless the plane has a pressurized cabin. Most of the big commercial airliners have such protective cabins.

All in all, I suggest that you heart and lung patients consult your doctor. He might suggest that you may do better to plan a vacation at the seashore or at least in some pleasant spot at sea level. You'll breathe easier if you do.

Parents Sue In-laws for 'Enticing' Son

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP) — A Pennsylvania couple charged in a $500,000 civil suit Monday that the Milwaukee parents of their future daughter-in-law "enticed" their son away from his home and Roman Catholic religion with money and promises of a $25,000-a-year job.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland William Thomas Cummings Sr., Wyncote, Pa., said their son, Leland Jr., came "under the influence" of the Arnold J. Werners of Milwaukee.

The suit alleged the Werners conspired to alienate their son through payment of Leland's tuition at Harvard, a $75 monthly allowance, the use of a car, and the promise of a $25,000-a-year job at the Milwaukee iron works which Werner heads.

Werner is president of the Wagner Iron Works of Milwaukee. Young Cummings is presently employed there.

The Cummings charged that Warner had "complimented Lee for refusing to attend the Catholic church and for choosing to attend a Protestant church with Mary Louise." The young couple is to be married June 29 in Milwaukee's St. Matthews Lutheran Church.

Anxiety Becoming Important to Illness

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP) —Some husbands of women who are on their ways toward becoming mothers are nauseated at the sight of breakfast even though their wives may be delighted to see the orange juice and eggs.

Dr. Marc J. Musser, psychiatrist of Madison, Wisc., cited this as a convincing and dramatic example of not only excessive anxiety but of misplaced and highly inappropriate anxiety.

Lecturing a medical audience, he was engaged in an increasingly common psychiatric endeavor these days—trying to convince other and non - psychiatric physicians that happiness pills are no true answer for anxiety.

"Attractive" as they are, they hold anxiety in check, whether it is excessive or normal. They don't cure excessive anxiety. Prolonged and difficult as it is, only psychotherapy can cure excessive anxiety, he said.

Seems On Increase

There's a lot of excessive, misplaced anxiety loose in the land—and it seems to be increasing. It is a situation to which every physician of whatever specialty must face up and deal with effectively.

"Anxiety is, to some extent, a factor in almost every illness and may significantly influence its course and outcome," he continued. "The major feature of all psycho-neurotic disorders, regardless of whether they are manifested physically or as disturbances of bodily function, is excessive and sustained anxiety.

"An increasing amount of evidence exists to indicate that anxiety may play a causative role in a large number of specific diseases, some of which, such as essential hypertension, petric ulcer, ulcerative colitis, hyperthyroidism and angina pectoris, may be disabling and life-threatening."

That's what physicians must face up to, while keeping in mind that "there is a certain range of anxiety which is an entirely normal reaction to various life-threatening situations, and an essential asset for the protection and survival of the organism.

"Morbid anxiety, however, has a much more complex significance. It is a state of excessive, frequently inappropriate, and sustained anxiety which has undesirable and often devastating effects upon the mental and physical health of the individual."

"In the majority of instances, it is the result of an unresolved conflict which arises sometime during a person's life. In some cases, the conflict exists at a conscious level and can be defined by the patient. More often, because of its unpleasant and threatening nature, and the existence of elements not acceptable to the individual's concept of himself, the conflict has been repressed into the unconscious."

Psychotherapy can — though often only after much effort—resolve the conflict, and that is the only cure. Psychiatrists can't handle all this work, and prospective work — there aren't enough psychiatrists. General practitioners and internists must learn to apply psychotherapy—that is their "responsibility" because of "the apparent increase of emotionally induced illnesses."
